Chuck Sprink... ...ts Florida man's ...art

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

Romulus heart patient Chuck Sprinkle will never consider the numeral "13" unlucky any more.

For it was on Aug. 13 that Sprinkle, a former General Motors employee, received the heart of a 26-year-old Florida accident victim.

Sprinkle, husband of Romulus school bus driver Pat Sprinkle, was at Presbyterian University Hospital now known as University of Pittsburgh Medical Center, attached to an artificial heart, when he received the heart transplant announcement about 9:30 a.m. that exciting Sunday morning.

His wife said doctors began to implant the new heart about 6 p.m. that night and then prepared for a battle against any potential rejection by his body.

The main concern initially, his wife said, was potential kidney failure caused by Sprinkle's extended time with an artificial heart.

Pat Sprinkle continually blesses the artificial heart apparatus. "Without a doubt it saved Chuck's life," she said. "Chuck was able to walk two hours a day on the treadmill, while he was attached to that artificial heart."

Since the transplant, Sprinkle's voice has gotten a little raspy and he said he can't wait until he gets his first cup of coffee, his wife said.

Prior to being attached to that device in June, Sprinkle spent 61 days on a balloon heart pump at Beaumont Hospital.

Sprinkle talking from his Beaumont Hospital bed in May vowed that if he survived this life-threatening situation, he would love to return to Romulus and join the speakers bureau for organ donations.

Sprinkle was "No. 1" on the Michigan and later several states' heart transplant list, but as medical leaders said that is no guarantee of an early transplant.

Many physical characteristics come into play when decisions on transplants are scheduled, doctors say, and one of the most important is blood typing.

What does an excitable housewife do while her husband is waiting months for a gift heart? Well for Pat Sprinkle it was putting together jigsaw puzzles and reading books.

Luckily, she said, a series of housing units for family members of transplant patients known as "Family House" is available in Pittsburgh.

Family members were treated to an old style picnic last Sunday. Because of Sprinkle's health problems and other stresses, Pat said surprisingly it was her first of the summer.

She has spent weeks at the home and expects that her husband will live there as his health improves, prior to his returning home in Romulus.

In the meantime, Pat Sprinkle realizes that she needs to return to Romulus by Sept. 5 to resume her school bus duties.

Mail cutoff angers businessman

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

A veteran Romulus television repairman was stymied recently why he was not receiving his business mail for several days at a time.

"I always heard that mailmen could not not be stopped by rain nor sleet nor any other natural calamity," Edgar A. Killingbeck declared last week.

But recently I learned that my neighbor's barking dog could and did block such delivery at my shop, the businessman said.

Killingbeck, who has operated Buz's TV Service on Goddard Road for nearly 35 years, had his mail service discontinued on Aug. 4 without any notification from his mail carrier.

He said several times in previous weeks, someone had written "dog out" on the envelopes he received, but he didn't know what it referred to since he had no pets on his business property.

After not receiving any business mail Aug. 4, 5, 7 and 8, Killingbeck said, he was notified by his neighbor, Anita Glaab, who operates the Monarch Cleaners, that both their mail deliveries had been cancelled indefinitely, because apparently her dog barked at the mail deliverer.

> We work strictly with the airport and do our own pick up and deliveries.
> - Anita Glaab

Glaab said she was shocked she was informed by a city animal control officer, rather than the local Post Office about the mail stoppage.

Killingbeck became angry and called the Romulus Roman office and later that of Congresswoman Lynn Rivers.

Killingbeck said he had called the Taylor Post Office several times in an effort to talk to Postmaster Tim Bruce, but was always told he was tied up in a meeting or was in Detroit on business.

At one point, Killingbeck said, a postal supervisor stopped by and dropped off several days' mail. He did the same the next two days (Aug. 10 and 11), and that second day also deposited a note for the TV repairman to call the postal supervisor on the mail stoppage issue.

But still he could never reach Bruce, Killingbeck said.

Finally in desperation, he called the congresswoman's office late on Aug. 16 and then said he was happily surprised to find Bruce available on the phone the next day.

Bruce assured me the mail stoppage should never have occurred, Killingbeck said, and apologized strongly for the breakdown in communication.

Glaab admitted her dog "Smokey" started to run at the mailman one afternoon, but stopped when she called him about 30 feet away from the postal deliverer.

Most of the time, the dog is on a chain at the rear of the business, Glaab said.

The reason she has the dog on the property is for protection, Glaab said, as a while back her vehicles (as well as others nearby) were being vandalized. She admits about a year ago that her dog nipped several children and she paid a $100 fine for one biting case.

But the dog is trained not to go out the front door and her business attracts no in-house customers.

"We work strictly with the airport and do our own pick up and deliveries," thus such dog problems are minimal," she said.

Killingbeck said he accepts Bruce's convincing apology, but is frustrated that it took so long to correct the problem.

Housing proposal gets key support

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

A proposed three-stage housing development on city owned property in the Pennsylvania-Middlebelt Road area moved a step closer Monday night, despite a number of citizen concerns.

Michael Prochaska, spokesperson for the three member Romulus Development Team, told the Romulus Planning Commission that after negotiating with the city Community Development Director Jane Downing, a tentative plan to create 274 single family homes has been put together.

Some of the home lots will be 60 feet and others will be 80-90 feet, Prochaska said, and the asking price for the homes will begin at $120,000.

The land known as the Heath Pointe property is adjacent to a major outdoor flea market area that some call an "community eyesore", which has caused some residents to doubt the homes will sell at the stated price.

But Prochaska said the portion of the 97.06 acre property that is closest to the flea market, will be the last to be developed and thus he didn't see that as a detriment to marketing the quality homes.

Residents also expressed hope that the new homes would be sound- proofed against airport noise. But Downing said the development area was not in the airport's designated noise zone, but she was sure that both the developers and mortgage lenders would make sure that the homes are highly marketable.

Under questioning Prochaska admitted his two partners in the venture are Ernest Zachary and Gus Pappas. He said the institution that will provide the funding will remain unidentified at this time.

Two other main concerns addressed at the planning commission sessions were:

- the developers will be petitioning the Romulus School District to service the subdivision.
- that the developers and home owners will bear the cost of the infrastructure improvements for the development, not the city. Downing admitted the infrastructure cost will be immense, an estimated $4 million which would equate to about $18,000 per home.

Planning Commission Chairman William Crova said he supports Romulus schools serving all families residing within the city, rather than allowing the students to attend nearby Woodhaven or Wayne-Westland Schools.

Several adjacent property owners said they paid extra for their homes with the promise their children would attend Woodhaven rather than Romulus Schools.

Some questioned whether Romulus Schools could move to reannex the Rudgate area homes.

Those homes were allowed to be transferred to the Wayne-Westland Schools, while Romulus Schools were out of formula by state standards.

Now that the state formula for school aid has changed, some area residents would

Airport official: Training device was no danger

A training device used for explosives-smelling airport security dogs was accidentally left on a Holland-based flight that traveled through Detroit Airport last weekend.

Michael Conway, Metro Airport spokesman, said the training device was placed inside Florida professor Paul Holloway's luggage last Friday, during a training session in Holland and then inadvertently was never removed.

Conway stressed the device, which contains some explosive elements, caused no danger to any passengers since the de-

Complaints against Raspberry dropped

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

City property permit complaints against Councilman Jimmie Raspberry have been dismissed in the 34th District Court.

A check with court officials Tuesday revealed city complaints that Raspberry failed to obtain various permits on a home Raspberry obtained from Best Way in 1990 were dismissed on June 26.

Also dismissed was a complaint that Raspberry had no certificate of occupancy for the two-story frame home that is now located at 36221 Beverly Road.

The permit issue became a political battle when Gwen Sibert, now a council candidate, and R.P. Lilly of the Romulus Environmentalists Caring About People (RECAP) spokesman demanded Raspberry turn over all his permits and other paperwork on the home to them.

Raspberry bluntly told both at open council meetings several times "It's none of your damn business."

Shortly after the dismissals, Lilly filed a Freedom of Information Act letter with the city, demanding to see any officials papers in connection with the Raspberry home.

Raspberry complains that the complaints on the house he purchased from Best Way were strictly an action ordered by Mayor Beverly McAnally.

welcome Rudgate families back into the Romulus School District.

But Romulus School Board member Howard Kesner, who serves on the City Planning Commission, said that issue needs to be addressed by the school board, not the planning unit.

The Planning Commission voted unanimously to pass on a favorable recommendation on the housing concept, leaving final approval and development specifics up to the City Council.

That vote probably will be taken next month, insiders said.

The Planning Commission voted unanimously to pass on a favorable recommendation on the housing concept, leaving final approval and development specifics up to the City Council.

If the proposal wins council support, Prochaska said his team hoped to complete negotiations with the city and begin site preparation this fall. Actual construction would begin next year, he predicted.

vice would not have exploded.

The device was discovered, when Holloway arrived in Orlanda, Fla. and he found his luggage torn. A check revealed also that the luggage contained a small soap bar size device inside, which Holloway said was not his.

Orlando first checked with Metro Airport, because it is known that the Romulus area airport conducts such explosives discovery tests periodically.

It ultimately was discovered that the device actually was planted in the traveler's bag by Dutch security officials.

"At Metro Airport, we do such placements during testing periods, but never use live luggage from passengers in the process," Conway explained.

"Security here usually uses unclaimed luggage for realism purposes."

Conway said he understands Holloway's concern over the handling of his personal property, but reemphasized that there was no actual physical danger to any passengers or crew members during the flights.

On campaign trail

New Metro World spending opposed

This is the fourth in a series of stories on current Romulus City Council candidates, who face a primary election on Sept. 12. Other stories will appear in future editions.

Local truck company owner William Crova vows if elected to a Romulus City Council seat, he will battle to return integrity as well as teamwork to the council floor.

The 48-year-old son of the late Romulus Fire Chief Joseph Crova, said he feels both his record as a local business company owner and chairman of the city Planning Commission gives him an ideal background for such a governmental position.

Crova said while he is opposed to the Environmental Disposal Systems deep well project, he has been careful not to join any citizens pressure group in case the project came before him on the Planning Commission.

"But I want the public to know that I will do nothing to harm the environment of this city," Crova stressed.

On two other pressing issues, Crova said:

• I would press Wayne County for the long overdue compensation Romulus should have been given in the past for the inconveniences caused by Detroit Metro Airport.

• I would work to address the needed upgrades on local roads, looking into every level of funding available to keep them from totally collapsing in the near future.

William Crova

He expressed his disappointment with Wayne County for leaving the city in the dark about its planned property trade-off involving the Department of Public Works building on Goddard Road.

Crova was also dissatisfied with the local school district signing over new housing developments to neighboring school districts, while the district was out of formula.

Sending Romulus students to out-of-town schools, he said, diminishes their identity with Romulus.

If elected, Crova vowed he "would not authorize one more dime of city funds to be spent on the planned Metro World project." To date, Crova complained, the city has done nothing but increase the property value of the oft-talked about Metro World, but has seen little private money invested there.

Crova favors a city referendum on whether the public wants a casino located in Romulus or not and vows to press for wider public access to local governmental meetings.

Crova, who said he has always worked to allow public dialogue as Planning Commission chairman, feels that school board and Planning Commission meetings should appear on cable television.

"Recently they televised Zoning Board of Appeals meetings," Crova said, "but that is only because a hot topic was on the agenda. I think ZBA meetings should also be telecast on a regular basis."

Crova said he has learned a lot about community involvement from his late dad and has himself served on the Romulus Fire Department as a volunteer. He also has served on the Romulus Community School District's Finance Committee and the Senior Alliance Holiday Meals unit of St. Aloysius Catholic Church.

A member of the Romulus Rotary Club, Crova served as its president in 1975. He also served with the Michigan Air National Guard from 1966- 72.

A Romulus native, he graduated from Romulus High School in 1965 and attended Cleary Business College in Ypsilanti for one year.

Crova and his wife, Carol, have two children, Mary, 20, and Karen, 16.

Ryznar won't be mayor's yes man

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

This is the fifth in a series of stories on current Romulus City Council Candidates, who will appear in the Sept. 12 primary. Other stories will follow.

Never shy about speaking out on controversial issues, John Ryznar promises that this year will provide plenty of news copy for political writers in the Romulus area.

Ryznar said he expects a tremendous war between the two mayoralty candidates, incumbent Mayor Beverly McAnally and challenger and former mayor William Oakley.

But if he wins election to the council, Ryznar promises he will not be a yes man for the mayor (no matter who is elected).

Ryznar expects to be targeted by members of Romulus Environmentalists Caring About People (RECAP) group, since the projected environmental well is located on property he owns on Wahrman Road.

But Ryznar vows he will not be deterred and he plans to make sure that the environmental deep well is not the only issue before the public this November.

Expect major political announcements to come later, Ryznar says, but he admits it is too early to discuss them now.

John Ryznar

Ryznar, an avowed union man, explains he worked for 45 years as an iron worker and even helped build the Mackinac Bridge.

Those experiences along with his 28 years as a owner-operator of the Ryznar Trucking Co. gives him the feeling that he has the critical skills needed to serve effectively as a city councilman.

"I'm licensed in just about every level of construction, except engineering," Ryznar said.

He already has mailed out his first political letter to voters, claiming that Class 1 deep injection wells are safe.

He explains "My wife (Mary Ann) and I have lived in Romulus for 67 years and have raised seven children here."

Because he also has 15 grandchildren, Ryznar vows, he too cares about Romulus' ongoing environment.

But, he says "irresponsible politicians running our city have spent a fortune fighting Environmental Disposal Services and the case has not gone to trial yet."

He urges the voters and taxpayers to take back their city and get rid of irresponsible Councilmen William Wadsworth, Randolph Gear and Michael Prybyla.

Ryznar supports a citizen preference poll on any possible casino within the city, opposes continued tax abatement for large businesses and feels the city's Department of Public Works has been lax on road improvements and ditch cleanings.

Ryznar attended Romulus Schools, leaving high school in the ninth grade. He served two years in the U.S. Merchant Marines (1945-46) and then spent 45 years in construction and 28 years as owner of his own company.

If elected, Ryznar vows to work for all the citizens of Romulus "not just the radical elements that scream the loudest."

County executive opposes agreement

Wayne County Executive Edward H. McNamara has taken a stand against the Republican-sponsored 1996 Congressional Budget Resolution Conference Agreement.

The agreement proposes to cut more that $270 billion from Medicare between 1996 and 2002. Most of the $270 billion will come from Medicare cuts which would not be necessary without the Republican's $245 billion tax cut for the wealthiest Americans.

McNamara said of this agreement, "This strategy will gore the Medicare industry. It will ensure that middle-class and poor Americans will have limited access to adequate health care. I cannot in good conscious support such an act."

For example, in Wayne County, there are more than 300,000 Medicare beneficiaries in the state of Michigan. The Republicans' agreement will reduce the country's Medicare spending by $519 million in 2002, which means a $2,144 million reduction in Medicare spending between 1996 and 2002.

Over a seven year period, this reduction will increase the out-of- pocket costs, on average, to $2,375 per beneficiary and to $4,750 per couple, according to the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.

"Congress should begin to re-think its priorities," said McNamara, "and remember the needs of their constituents back at home - and not support this budget agreement."

Council approves business plans

By MARGO DEWEY
MCN News Editor

Business in the City of Wayne keeps growing and growing.

The city council recently approved site plans for a beauty salon, warehouse and party store.

The Wayne Party Store, 3113 south Wayne Road, is under new management after being sold by 'Wild' Bill Copland.

"The new owner is undergoing extensive renovation of the interior and installing a new awning sign," said City Planner Scott Lee.

A few contingencies were required as a result of the council approval which included:

- Separate water service from the adjacent building to the south.
- Remove unused bumper blocks at rear of the property.
- Sealcoat and stripe rear parking area for typical and handicapped parking.

The warehouse for Rosenau Powersports, 31731 Michigan Ave., was also approved by the council.

"The applicant is moving the warehousing operation of Rosenau Powersports from its current location, 3441 Filbrt Ave., to a new location on Michigan Avenue," said Lee. "The property under review was formerly occupied by Church's Lumber and, more recently, by All American Motorcycle and Hot Rod Trade Center."

No major renovation of the property is planned, according to Lee.

A new beauty shop, Kathie's Secret, 4476 Treadwell Road, will soon be opening.

"The property is located at the northwest corner of Annapolis Avenue and Treadwell Road," said Lee. "The most recent use was as a meeting hall for the Wayneland Eagles. The applicant will be renovating the interior and adding new signage."

A caring spirit

Youngsters with special needs served, offered support

By LORI GILLESPIE
MCN Staff Writer

"We proved that you can do something with nothing."

Florence Lawson has proved many things since she began the Free Spirit day care and youth group three years ago with some toys donated by a woman who found them in her basement.

Lawson says that Free Spirit is the first day care of its kind in the area.

It is unique in the fact that it is open 24 hours a day, and it accepts children who are physically and mentally challenged.

"Most day cares stay away from that. I ask for that. And, Free Spirit is the first ever seven day, 24 hour day care/ youth group facility in this area," Lawson explained. "With the Ford plant in the area, I know many parents must work at night. They find it difficult to get someone to take care of their children while they are at work. If we didn't have 24-hour care, most of these kids would probably end up staying home alone."

Taking care of the children while the parents work also helps the parents become more self-sufficient.

"Many of the parents who use the Free Spirit organization are in the low-income bracket. They don't want to be in this bracket, and they are working to pull themselves out of it. If they used other day care facilities, they would spend a large portion of what they make on day care," Lawson said. "I would rather have them save the money for other things. I only charge them 10 cents an hour to care for their children."

Doing something with nothing is what Lawson and Free Spirit day care are all about.

"About three years ago, I wanted to get the kids out in the community. We decided to go to the Huron Metropark, but, I didn't have a car. I didn't have any idea about how I was going to get them to the park. So, I asked a neighbor, Gloria Kauffman, if she could take us. She said, 'yes,' and then got up every morning faithfully to take us," Lawson said.

"One day, Gloria was gone on vacation, but I had to get there, so I went up to a lady -- I didn't know this lady -- and I asked if I could borrow her car. She agreed and gave me the keys. She allowed me to use it from that day on," she said thankfully. "Another lady, Barbara Marshall, loaned me $300 for a car. We later progressed to a van."

The children in Lawson's care experience a multi-cultural environment with a structured program.

"I have children from all walks of life. All different races are represented, I even have a Nigerian child in the program," Lawson said. "Our program is very structured. We have art time, a learning center, all different things which are suited to their day."

The Free Spirit center, located in Lawson's home in Belleville, has the look of any home with a large family living in it. The walls are covered with artwork done by the children, and there are many toys for the kids to play with.

There is a total of 37 children altogether in the day care and youth group.

The center is licensed to take care of 10 children at a time.

"We're trying to get into a bigger building right now, so we can take care of more children," Lawson stated.

"We also have the privilege of having a recreational therapist, Edward Butler, working with the children. The children are in a rotation. He takes the children in ratio (five kids per one caregiver), once a month for play therapy. He has donated his time and the equipment needed," said Lawson.

Lawson also takes the children to the YMCA in Ann Arbor.

They get help when they are there from many people and places. The store, Heart to Heart, has been a great supporter of the system. One of the people who helps with Free Spirit is Elizabeth Handelka, who has set up scholarships to the YMCA for the children.

Lawson believes in helping the children become well-rounded individuals. Therefore, she not only concentrates on their physical well being, but also their mental well being.

"We go all different places. We go to the Detroit Institute of Arts, and different parks in the area. I want to expose them to a better way of life in a fun way. We also play the noun game. With this, the children have to come up with words which are nouns. If it's not a noun, we'll tell them it's a verb or whatever, that way they are also learning verbs as well," Lawson said with a smile.

Another thing that makes her smile is, "seeing people change."

One example of this is Brian, a child in Lawson's care.

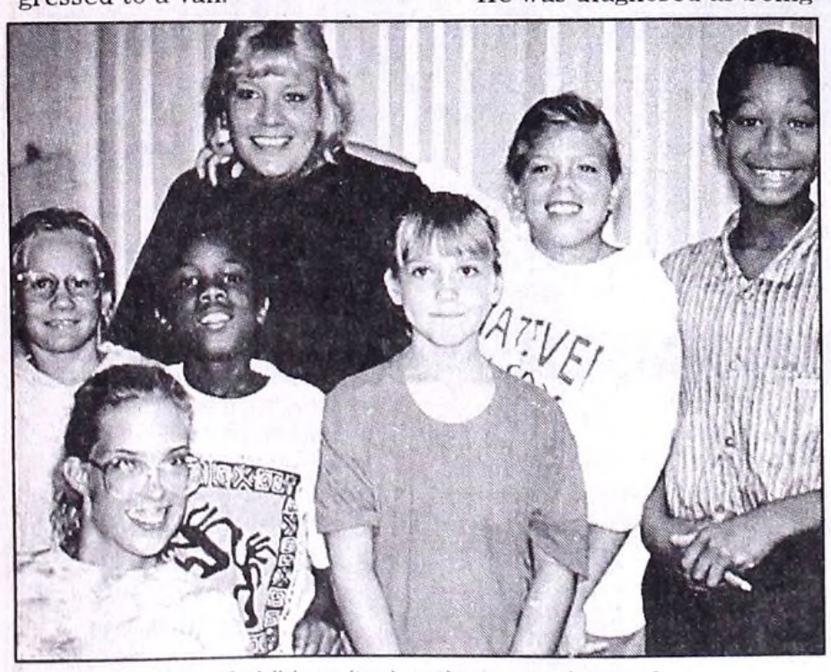

"He was diagnosed as being hyper-active. His teachers said they couldn't control him. He couldn't sit still for five minutes. His doctors put him on drugs to control him. I spoke to his parents about the possibility of taking him off of the drugs for the weekends, and see if we could teach him how to control himself. We have done this for three years, and look at him now, he can actually sit for a half hour. He has learned that when he feels the hyper-active emotions coming on, he should go and sit quietly by himself until the feelings go away," Lawson said with pride.

At the time of the interview, Brian was sitting quietly with the other children watching television.

Lawson would also like to affect the way "her children" look at the future.

"I take them on tours of the local colleges, so they can see what it is like.

Lawson says that she still has slots open for night care for two infants. She would also like to invite the community to get involved with her program by calling her at 697-1463.

Is a Michigan MBA that important?

Should we tell the world how important our MBA program is by changing the University logo? We probably couldn't get away with it, but many graduates (and even more potential employers) think that a Masters degree in Business Administration from the University of Michigan is among the strongest in the field. Good news for you.

The School of Management now offers two graduate degree programs at the Dearborn campus. There is a dual degree program leading to both the Master of Business Administration and Master of Science in Engineering—Industrial and Systems Engineering. Then there is the MBA program which is designed as a cross-over vehicle for those whose undergraduate degrees are in areas other than business administration.

Of course, with the Dearborn campus, things are even more convenient for many students. Not easier, just more convenient. After all, this is the University of Michigan.

Arraignment set for area man charged in assault

A Garden City man charged with assault with intent to murder and felony firearm is expected to appear in Detroit Recorder's Court this week for an arraignment on information.

Donald Webb, 17, is in the Wayne County jail pending a $500,000 cash bond. He allegedly shot at a 39-year-old Wayne man July 17 in the Arby's parking lot in Wayne.

"The incident occurred around 8:35 p.m.," said Wayne police Lt. Mel Drews. "The victim said he was in the parking lot in his vehicle when he noticed the defendant made a derogatory comment at him."

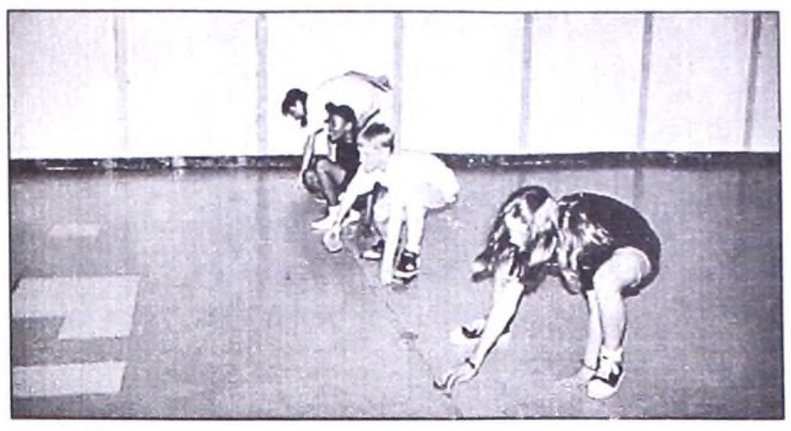

According to police, Webb walked over to the victim's car and pointed a handgun at him. Webb allegedly said, "Do you want to die?"

The victim then walked into Arby's to avoid the defendant, and as he entered the building, shots were fired. No one was injured.

Webb, a former Wayne resident, was arraigned July 22 in an out county court, and a $500,000 cash bond was set.

Drews said Webb had been arrested previous to the July 17 incident as a juvenile.

If he is found guilty of assault with intent to murder, he could receive up to life in prison.

Exam set in assault

The examination for a Wayne man charged with three counts of criminal sexual conduct was adjourned last week until Sept. 13 before 29th District Court Judge Carolyn Archbold.

Hilton Anderson is accused of having sexual relations with a 19-year- old Canton woman against her will, according to Wayne police Lt. Mel Drews.

"The victim went to the defendant's home willingly," said Drews. "However, she did not give consent to having sexual relations with him."

Drews said the victim was taken to Detroit against her will. Anderson was arraigned in an out county court, and a $20,000 cash bond was set.

"He has an extensive criminal record," said Drews. "He has been sentenced on other charges which I cannot reveal at this time."

Anderson appeared for the Aug. 16 examination before Archbold, however, a request was made for more time to prepare for the case by both attorneys.

Girls' soccer team needs players

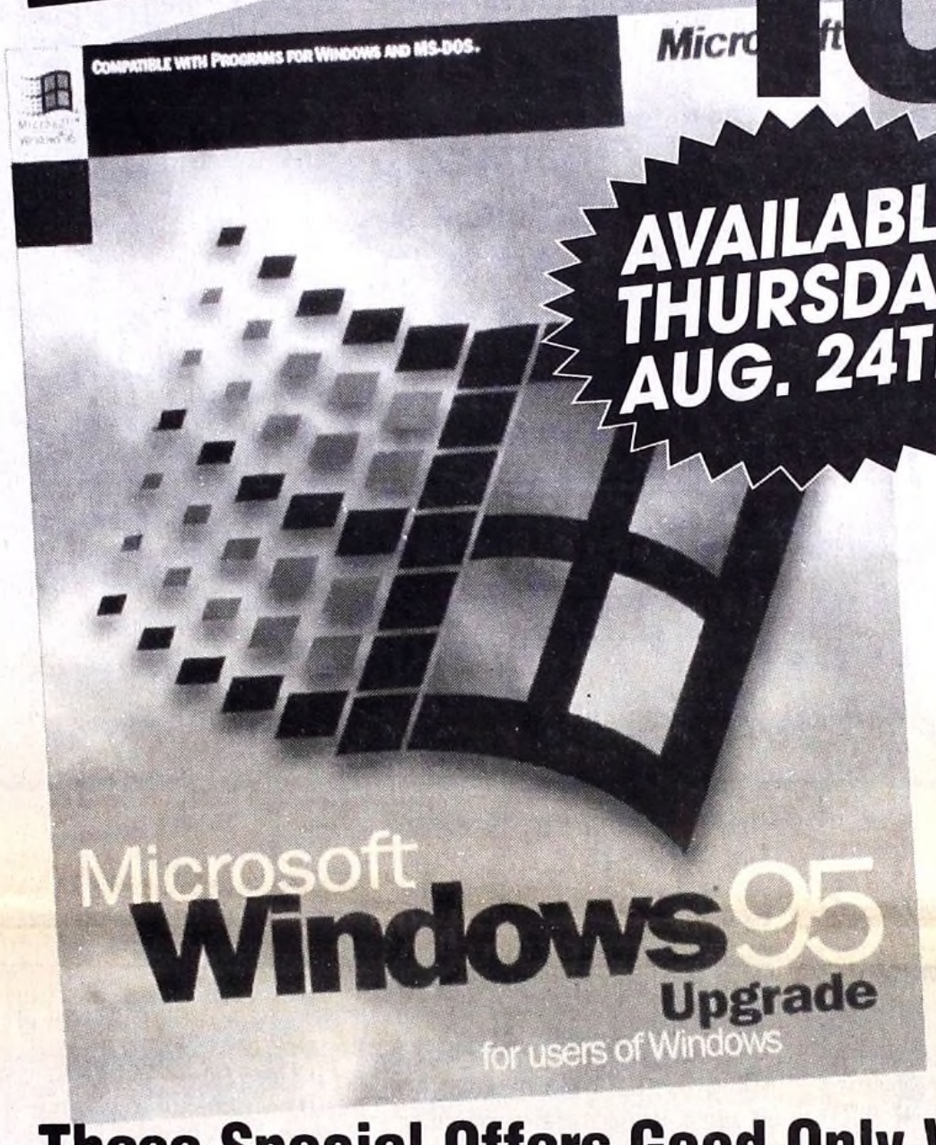

The Wayne/Westland girls soccer league is looking for players, under 16, to play in the fall season.

According to the coach, "There is no experience necessary. The only quality we are looking for in the girls is the desire to play the game and to have fun."

Mike's musings

Mike Wilcox

Opportunity continues to knock on the doors of Inkster. After years of commercial and residential inactivity, businesses and housing developments are popping up in Inkster. That process may be spurred on further by a new State of Michigan fund called Tax Free Renaissance Zones.

Ann Mervenne, a spokesperson for Gov. John Engler, was in Inkster last week to speak to a large group of business and government leaders about the new fund. It was clear after her presentation was made that Inkster could be in the running for the Renaissance Zone designation.

The zones will be set up in economically depressed areas of the state in an effort to provide a major economic boost to the total area — commercial, industrial and residential. The benefit of the Renaissance designation is that all businesses and residents in the area will pay no state, local or single business tax for 10 year. Let me repeat — no taxes paid for 10 years, period!

One catch is that the zones are limited. Only one Renaissance Zone per county will be allowed, with a maximum five urban and three rural zones chosen. Detroit is also allowed one zone exclusive of Wayne County. That means Inkster will face severe competition from other municipalities like Highland Park, Ecorse and River Rouge to win the designation. That means officials ought to be drawing up their application now so that when Engler makes his decision in October, Inkster has a reasonable opportunity to win the designation.

If Inkster is in the midst of a renaissance, its neighbor to the west, the city of Wayne has its share of commercial project on the drawing board. One of the most intriguing is former mayor Patrick Norton's Old Village Special Center.

Norton intends to create a village within the city with the project slated to open in January across from the library. The village will consist of four separate buildings with spaced leased exclusively to professionals — doctors, accountants, lawyers, etc.

Although this writer has not seen the architectural drawings, the concept seems like it will be a nice fit to the library and other recently constructed buildings downtown. Now if we could only get a major face lift for some of the buildings along Michigan Avenue — that would truly be exciting.

It's good to hear justice does prevail once in awhile, Sunday's {i}Eyewitness{r} reported Kathy Ann Frye, set to be placed in the state's tether program, which would essentially allow her to live at home, next door to the elderly woman she embezzled $375,000 from, is now jailed indefinitely.

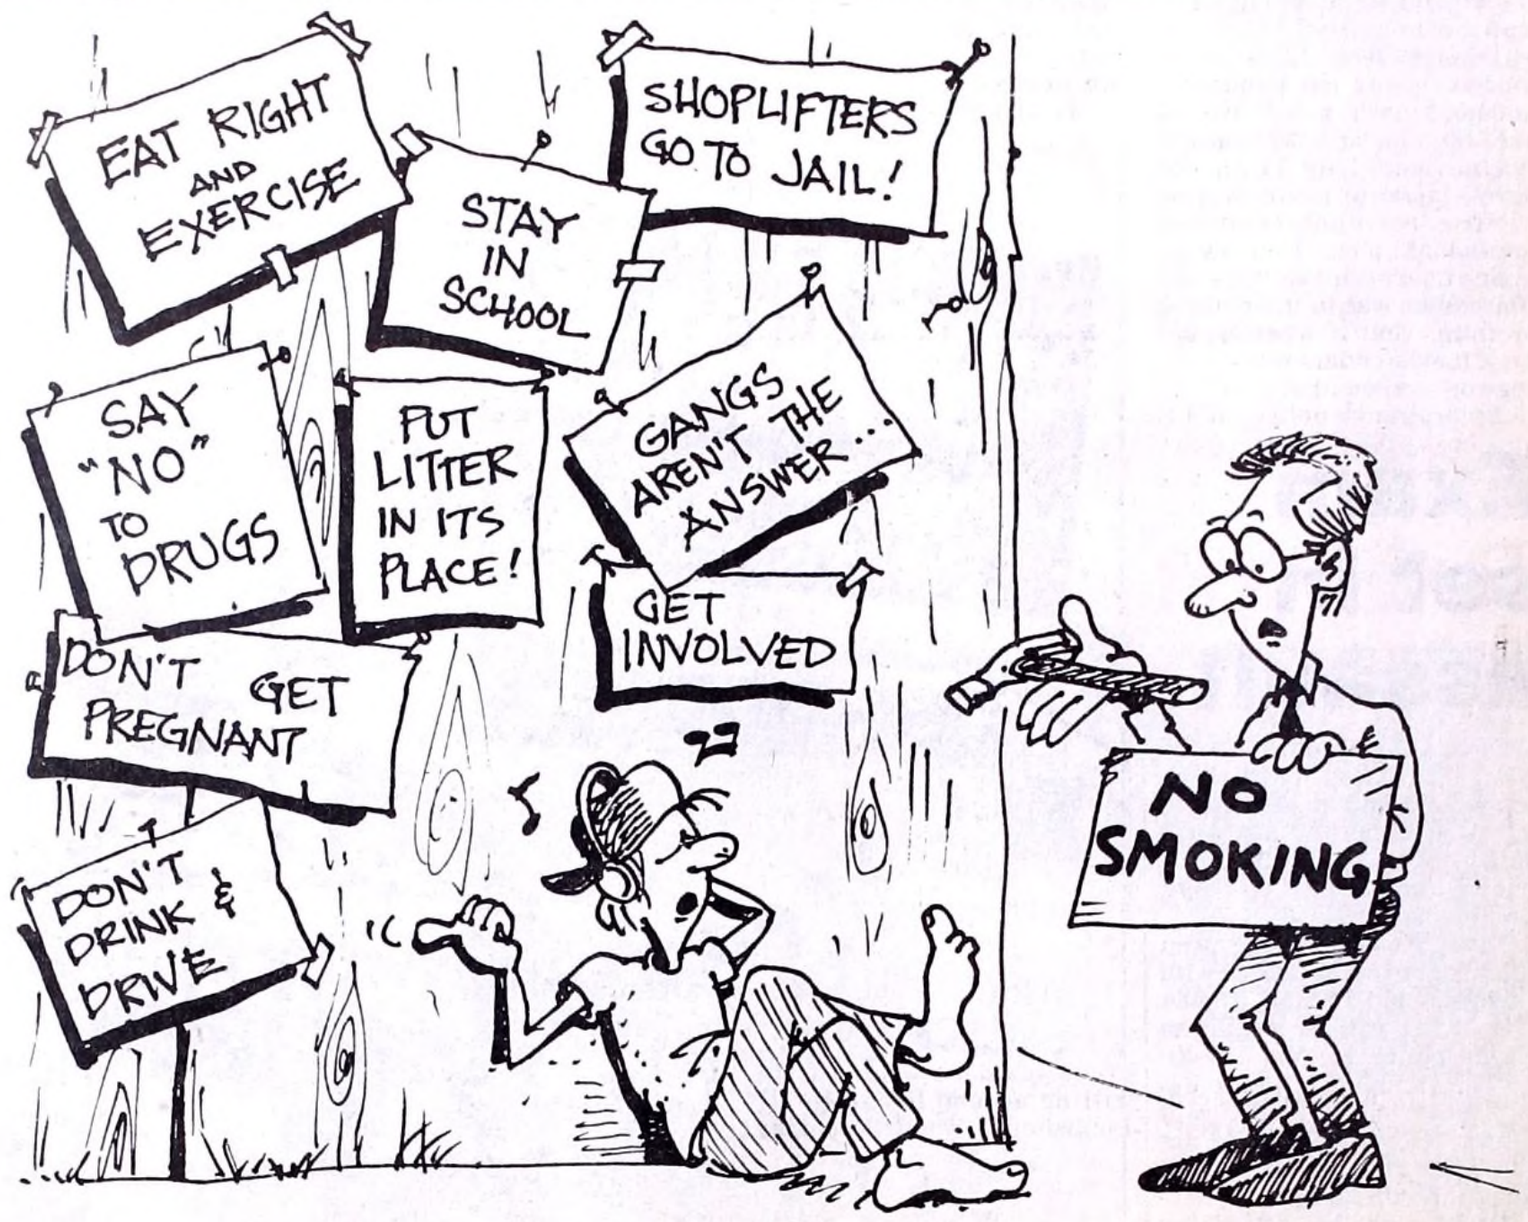

Strong letters of protest from Romulus Mayor Beverly McAnally and Wayne County Prosecutor John D. O'Hair to Department of Corrections Director Kenneth McGinnis prevented the tether designation.

This could have been a tragic situation if Frye would have been allowed out of prison. Helene Pack, the 78-year-old victim, would probably live night and day in total fear knowing that Frye, who over the course of several years took several hundred thousand and has yet to make restitution on any of it, was residing next door. Fortunately, the wheel of justice forbade this from happening.

Concert appreciated

To the editor:

I would like to extend my congratulations and sincere appreciation to the Belleville Area Council for the Arts. On a warm, summer Thursday evening, August 10, 1995, along with many other residents and families, it was my pleasure to sit back in a lawn chair, relax and listen to the beautiful music produced by the 61 member Ann Arbor Symphony Orchestra performing "The Summer Symphony," conducted by Jon F. Krueger. Our blooming and beautifully maintained Van Buren Park, under the stars, was the setting for this most enjoyable evening. I am thankful that our park has been appropriately maintained and reserved for appreciative people and nice events. I did not witness any rudeness, littering, or disrespect the entire evening, which certainly speaks well of our community. I pray that Van Buren Park will always remain in its present state of Serene, natural beauty.

It was approximately 25 years ago, when the Detroit Edison Company decided to divest itself of their "gem in the rough" - the 101 acre park and lake, and give it to Van Buren Township. Elton Gollwitzer was Supervisor at that time and there was a great deal of opposition against the township accepting this gift. After many months of debate and meetings with the opposition, Mr. Gollwitzer was finally able to convince them that it would be most unfortunate and unwise for the township to reject Edison's generous offer. Residents of the entire area are the benefactors of this wise and timely decision.

My heartfelt thanks goes to the Belleville Area Council for the Arts, and the Ann Arbor Symphony Orchestra, as well as all of our Van Buren Township officials and park maintenance people for their combined, determined efforts to provide our residents with an evening to be fondly remembered.

Hopefully, the success of this event will warrant an encore!

Crisis alert or medicare

To the editor:

Most older Americans are unaware that Medicare is in danger of financial collapse. I urge you to run stories alerting senior citizens in our community about this crisis.

Congress must not "fix" Medicare as they have in the past. Simply cutting spending in Medicare will lead to rationing.

I support the position of The Seniors Coalition to give me the option of innovative free market choices in health care, or allow me to stay on Medicare if I want to. Please call their Washington office at 1-800-273-9009 for more information on their solution to the crisis.

Disease information corrected

To the editor:

In his press conference regarding Dr. Jack Kevorkian's latest assisted suicide, attorney Jeffrey Feiger stated several times that multiple sclerosis is a terminal disease. This statement is inaccurate, as MS is not a terminal illness, except in the rarest cases (less than one percent).

To persons recently diagnosed with multiple sclerosis, this inaccurate statement could be devastating. The National Multiple Sclerosis Society requests that the media assist us in disseminating the correct information about MS.

Following are three facts about multiple sclerosis that would be helpful if given as part of or as a follow up to any story run about this morning's event.

· Multiple Sclerosis is not a terminal illness except in the rarest cases (less than one percent). With modern medicine and technology, people with MS live 90%-95% of the normal life span.

· Sixty to seventy percent of people with MS remain ambulatory or ambulatory with aid. The majority of people with MS are not severely affected. Most of those who are, make adaptations and live quality lives despite their physical limitations.

· The National Multiple Sclerosis Society does not believe that the solution to MS is suicide. We believe that the solutions are in providing assistance so that people with MS can lead quality lives, and in continuing to seek the cause, treatment and cure for disease through research.

Federal tax reform considered

Two plans have recently been introduced in the U.S. Congress to reform the federal tax system.

One plan calls for replacing the current income tax laws with a simple "flat" tax which all Americans would pay regardless of income, thus eliminating most tax deductions and loop holes.

The other plan calls for replacing federal income taxes with a national federal sales or "consumption" tax.

Supports of the federal "flat" income tax claim their proposal would simplify the existing tax code to the point where nearly every taxpayer could send in their annual return on a post card size form. Every citizen and business would pay the exact same percentage of income tax proposed at 17 percent.

Proponents of a national sales of "consumption" tax claim their plan would eliminate the Internal Revenue Service completely and replace it with a tax similar to the sales tax currently collected in 45 states. Their system taxes most retail sales at a flat rate of 17 percent with a few exemptions - purchases of new homes and some necessities. American exported good would not be taxed, but imported goods sold here would be.

Do you favor a change in the federal income tax system?

Text book use scare tactics

Guest Editorial
By Michael Sanera, Burton Folsom
Mackinaw Center

The latest classroom fad is environmental education. Textbook after textbook used in Michigan's public schools teach our children that our world is near destruction.

Here, for instance, is a sample of what our children are reading about acid rain:

"Acid rain has become one of the most serious environmental problems facing the United States and Canada Today." (Michigan: The World Around Us, Macmillan/ McGraw Hill, 1992)

"Acid Rain has rendered 'almost lifeless' some of America's lakes and it 'destroys millions of dollars of crops in the United States each year." (Health For Life, Scott Foresman 1990).

"The evidence of the damage (from acid rain) is alarming: lakes and streams that once teemed with plants, fish, and other animals lie barren and still, empty of most aquatic life. ... acid rain is damaging the Great Lakes region and] nearly half of the lakes and forests in eastern Canada." (World Geography: A Global Perspective Prentice Hall, 1992.)

Such statements from textbooks used in Michigan are pure balderdash. The acid-rain scare was debunked years ago. In 1980, Congress invested $500 million into a major scientific study called National Acid Precipitation Assessment Project (NAPAP). After ten years of careful research, the expert scientists involved in the study concluded that there is very little evidence that acid rain damages forests or crops.

The NAPAP study also found that American lakes and streams were in much better shape that the EPA and other critics had asserted. The Great Lakes, for example, not only passed the acid rain tests with ease, Lakes Michigan and Superior register four times cleaner than they were in 1970.

Other prophets of environmental doom have found children's textbook writers to be willing accomplices. Merrill Publishers; World Geography: People and Places warns children about the "population crisis," where world population is escalating geometrically and "500 million people suffer from malnutrition." Overpopulation and hunger are important issues that require careful analysis, not scary statements. The statistics show that the world population growth rate began to decrease in the 1960s and that world population growth should level by the year 2100. Annual food production – especially for wheat and rice – is outstripping world population growth.

Yes, some people in the world are starving; but these cases, mainly in Africa, government is usually the problem, not the solution. Dennis Avery, a food expert with the Hudson Institute, said five years ago that "nearly all the world's hunger in 1990 was political." Avery and others cite examples of African government using food as a weapon in their civil wars; and of Marxist governments setting prices so low that farmers have no incentive to produce crops for the city people nearby. Avery concludes that "Africa is a vestige of the hunger problem which once faced all of the Third World -- it is not a forerunner of impending famine for the Earth."

Many of our environment problems are a result of governmental meddling. When Merrill's Science connections laments that "many acres of wetlands have disappeared," we need to understand that our vast and expanding farm-subsidy program encourages farmers to turn wetlands into crop lands. When Prentice Hall in its text World Geography: A Global Perspective complains that landfills in the U.S. have declined in number from 20,000 to 6,000, we need to understand that local ordinances give no economic incentive for citizens to want a landfill near their homes. These important facts, however, are not to be found in these books.

Apart from the twisting of facts, a larger question is this: Do we want our children on their history, science, geography, and health classes to be bombarded with scary statements about a dangerous world and a perilous future? All of these books cited are used in Michigan's public schools, mostly at the elementary level. "As if children don't have enough to worry about these days,..." Nancy Bray Cardozo observes in Audubon Magazine, "Environmentalists are teaching them that their very planet is at risk. The pressure on and it's taking its toll."

In Michigan's public schools, we need more emphasis on the basics, not on current fads that hide a political agenda. If we must teach children special units on the environment, the focus should be on careful scientific and economic analysis, not twisted facts.

American civilization around the year 2000. Here's what those distant archaeologists might report about us many years from now.

We have finally determined the cause of the collapse of American civilization shortly after the year 2000 AD. American civilization collapsed in the first decade of the 21st century because of what we are now calling -- "The Great American Job Famine."

The Great American Job Famine began around the year 1995 -- coincidently, almost 150 years to the day from the beginning of the Great Irish Potato Famine. Indeed, the American working man and his ancestral cousin in Ireland had much in common. Both relied too heavily on one source of support for their survival. This we now know is almost always a grave mistake.

The Irishman grew fat and sassy on his small but bountiful potato patch. He became too confident -- and had many children. When the potato crop dwindled -- then failed altogether -- the results were disastrous.

Likewise, the late 20th century American worker grew too dependant on "the job" for his survival.

In late 20th century America, the "job" was at the very center of each persons' economic existence. (Because the skills of the traditional farmer had long since been abandoned.) So the job became, in essence, the American workers' "potato patch." Without it he could be evicted from his home -- and face financial, if not actual starvation.

Around the year 1995 -- a continuous wave of layoffs, downsizings and mergers swept across the American economic landscape. Good jobs disappeared almost overnight. Like the potato fungus in Ireland -- the problem seemed to come from somewhere else.

Some said the global economy caused it. Others blamed the national debt, politicians, immigrants, minorities, welfare recipients or whatever. The scapegoats were many. But the famine persisted.

Eventually -- as with all famines -- an end came and things got better. But the survivors were greatly changed. They were now a thrifty and industrious group of people. Instead of relying on artificial constructs like "jobs" -- and counter-productive government spending programs to "bootstrap" them to prosperity -- they realized that true economic prosperity depended solely on the value that one's labor added to the ultimate product. And, that this high value added labor was the only real economic "coin of the realm."

An Adventure World opens for students

Children's World Learning Centers, in conjunction with Wayne-Westland elementary schools Hicks, Hoover and P.D. Graham, announced the opening of its "Adventure Club" before and after school program on the premises of the school sites.

The program will be managed by Children's World and will serve kindergarten through sixth grade children.

The Adventure Club consists of up to nine "clubs" that help children explore science, crafts, cooking sports, drama and other activities.

> "We are extremely excited that Hicks, Hoover and P.D. Graham elementary schools have chosen Children's World Learning Centers..."
> - Joy Ennis

The program allows children to make individual choices, make long-term commitments to specific interests and achieve new knowledge through new opportunities.

Children are guided every day by teachers to choose their own activities from the different clubs.

"We are extremely excited that Hicks, Hoover and P.D. Graham elementary schools have chosen Children's World Learning Centers to bring the Adventure Club to their students and their parents," said Joy Ennis, district manager for Children's World. "The opening of this program exemplifies Children's World's commitment to working with elementary schools to tailor a program around their facilities and provide the highest quality of care."

The Adventure Club opens at all three locations Aug. 30 and will operate 7 a.m. until the start of the school day and 6 p.m. at the end of the school day Monday through Friday.

Students must register for the Adventure Club at the Children's World on the school sites.

NATIONAL CENTER FOR MISSING & EXPLOITED CHILDREN

2101 Wilson Boulevard • Suite 550
Arlington, VA • 22201
(800) 843-5678 • (703) 235-3900

Each year, hundreds of children and young people are abducted and exploited. Their parents and family wait anxiously day after day for word of their child who was so viciously taken from their home. The National Center for Missing and Exploited Children is in the business of publicizing and ultimately solving these mysterious disappearances. The Center, based in Virginia, is responsible for most of the missing children advertisements which you see on milk cartons, billboards and such. The photographs on this page were taken from the files of the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children. They are all actively being sought by their parents, with very few leads. These children may be living in your neighborhood, attending your church, or even sitting next to your child in school. They are out there somewhere. Anyone with information concerning the whereabouts of any of these children is asked to call the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children at 1-800-843-5678. If your child is missing, call your local police department right away. If your child is at home, hug them and tell them about the danger of the world and teach them to be safe.

Thanks to these local businesses for sponsoring these missing children.

Soup makes nourishing lunch or hearty meal

By RACHAEL LEWIS
MCN Staff Writer

What's better for a nourishing lunch or as a course in dinner or great all by itself? Soup!

Soups are wonderful if you get chilled in the winter, want an easy lunch or to help cure a cold.

Here are some wonderful recipies to try from Recipies Homemade Happiness from the Bethlehem Temple of Inkster's cookbook.

Larry J. Baker's Noodle Soup

1 1/2 lbs. ground round, 1 pkg. egg noodles, 1 (12 oz.) can of whole tomatoes chopped, 1 stick of margarine, Salt and black pepper to taste.

Cook noodles in 2 1/2 cups of water with salt and pepper; bring to a boil. Drop ground round off into noodles, add tomatoes after chopped, then margarine. Let simmer until desired consistency. Serves 8 people.

Clam Chowder

4 slices bacon, 2 green onions chopped, 4 med. potatoes, diced and peeled, 3 tbsp. all purpose flour, 2 c. milk, 2 (6 1/2 oz.) cans minced clams and liquid, 3.4 tsp. salt, 1/2 tsp. white pepper, 1 c. whipping cream, chopped parsley.

In large heavy saucepan, saute the bacon until crisp. Add green onions and potatoes. Saute for a few minutes. Sprinkle with flour and milk. Stir to blend well. Bring to a boil. Simmer stirring until potatoes are tender, about 20 minutes. Add salt and pepper. Finally add clams with liquid and whipping cream. Heat soup, stirring, just until simmering. Do not boil or clams will toughen. Sprinkle with parsley.

AAA Michigan invites state residents to help celebrate the centennial and possibly win $500, a weekend getaway for two or other prizes. Simply turn the theme, "Salute to the Automobile," into a festive non- alcoholic drink for the Auto Club's annual "Zero-Proof Mix-Off" contest.

To enter, contestants should send a recipe for a favorite non- alcoholic drink to AAA Michigan, giving it a clever name reflecting an automotive theme. Examples of automotive-theme drinks are "Mustang Mocktail," Sparkplug Sparkling Punch," or Motor City Mamba."

Fifteen finalists from three regional contests, will be chosen to mix their drinks in person at one of three regional contests-- five finalists per contest.

The Detroit area contest will be Oct. 5.

At each, the drink judged best on taste, appearance, and adherence to the automotive theme will with its creator $500. Second place finishers will receive a weekend getaway for two; all other finalists will receive an American Express Gift check worth $50.

Winning recipes will be featured in Michigan Living an the 1995/96 "Great Pretenders Party Guide," distributed free statewide. The guide offers non-alcoholic drink recipes and ideas for the holidays and occasions throughout the year.

The contest deadline is Sept. 18. No alcohol or flavor extract with alcohol allowed. Entrants must be 16 years and older. AAA Michigan employees are not eligible.

'Whatever it takes'

Business magnate keeps successful dealership in the family

By MARGO DEWEY
MCN News Editor

Some men see things as they are and say "Why?". I dream things that never were and say why not. Robert Kennedy.

He's considered a giant in the automobile industry in Western Wayne County. The man who started out selling used cars in his youth now has one of the largest dealerships in the state, and his success keeps growing and growing.

History

Jack Demmer, owner of Jack Demmer Ford on Michigan Avenue in Wayne, began his career as a businessman after he returned from the war in the late 1950s.

"Originally I was in the used car business with my father after I came out of the Navy from World War II," said Demmer. "I bought him out. In 1957, we actually started as an Edsel dealer in Nankin Township at Wayne Road and Glenwood."

Demmer remained in that area until Ford discontinued the Edsel. In 1960 he moved out to South Lyon and purchased a Ford-Mercury dealership where he continued to put his customers first.

"We stayed in South Lyon until 1963," Demmer said. "On Aug. 15, 1963, we moved back to Wayne and moved the business across from the cemetery. A short time after that we moved into what is now the Michigan Community Newspapers building."

In 1969 the final move was made to the corner of Michigan Avenue and Newburgh Road. It was there Demmer expanded the Jack Demmer Ford dealership where it now houses 13 acres of vehicles.

"It has been the same corporation since 1957," said Demmer. "In 1975 I bought off my partner, Jim Spitler."

Inspiration

Demmer has always had a passion for cars and trucks even as a child. In fact his office walls are aligned with model cars and trucks of all shapes and sizes.

The business magnate attributes his aspirations to become a businessman to his father who was a hard worker and always supported the family.

"My father owned a used car lot near the family home when I was growing up by Grand River and 14th Street in Detroit," Demmer said. "When I was in high school I worked at a used car lot. I was in the car business practically all of my life.

"In fact, the only time I ever worked for anybody was when I was going to college and when I was in the Navy."

Wisdom

It takes a great deal of ingenuity, business sense and people skills to be able to build a mountain from a small hill.

Demmer found out at a young age that the key to success in business is to treat people fairly.

"The bottom line is you have to try and be fair with people whether they are customers or employees," said Demmer. "I say to my employees that if you take care of the customer, the customer will take care of us. That has been proven over the years."

In fact, Demmer said his dealership has the highest percentage of customer satisfaction in terms of his clients purchasing a car or truck and then returning after a few years to buy another vehicle.

Legacy

Demmer is now the chief executive officer of Jack Demmer Ford. He has passed on his wisdom to his two sons, Bill and Jim, who are now in the driver's seat at the dealership.

Bill is the president of the company and Jim is the vice president. The two have created their own motto for the dealership, "Whatever it takes, it can be done."

"My two sons are now calling the shots here," said Demmer. "I'm proud of them. I know they will continue to succeed."

Obstacles

In any business there are good times and bad times. What seems to help a company over the big obstacles is patience, quick thinking and perseverance.

"The bottom for us was in 1981 when we had our second energy crisis, and we had this big recession and wound up with a lot of cars," said Dem-

Jack Demmer works closely with his two sons, Jim (top left) and Bill (not pictured). He respects all of his employees such as Jack McLarty (bottom left).

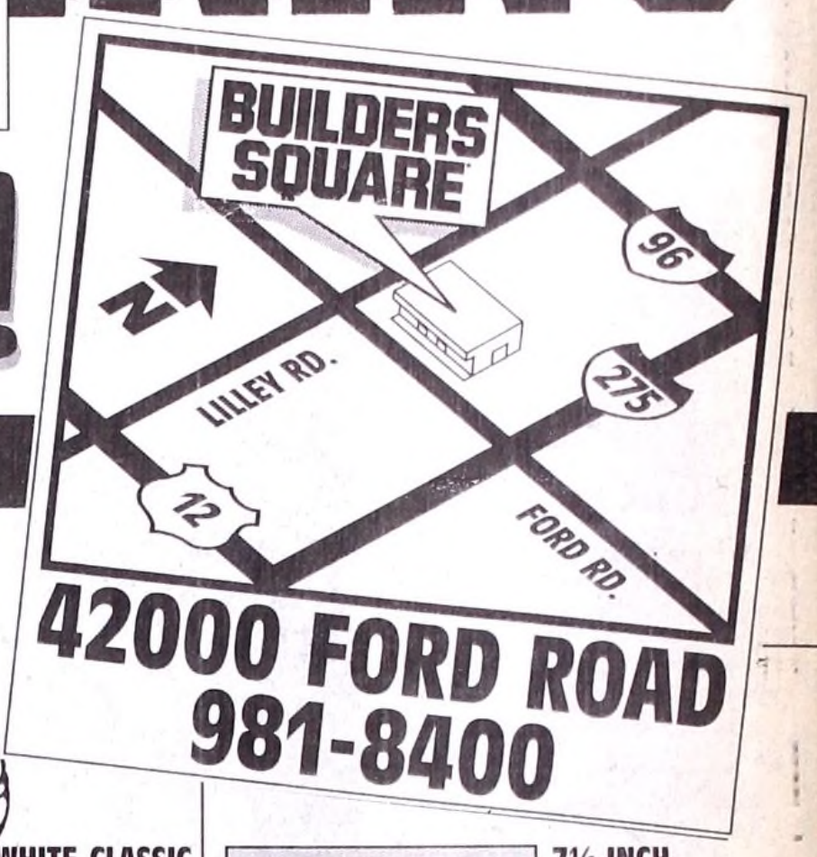

Jack Demmer has been collecting various model cars and trucks since he was in high school.

Inkster leaders hope to open doors of opportunity

By JOAN DYER-ZINNER
MCN Managing Editor

Inkster community leaders are pleased to see the long-awaited burst of development in their city, but they are hoping for even more - perhaps a state-sponsored "Renaissance."

Dozens of business owners, developers, community leaders and elected officials attended an Aug. 17 Inkster Renaissance Forum to hear Ann Mervenne, director of Governor John Engler's Southeast Michigan office explain the proposed plan.

The state hopes to implement the plan in October, choosing five urban and three rural zones within the state.

"It's never been tried any where else," Mervenne said. "We need to be bold, and find ways to get people off the welfare rolls and onto the payrolls."

Mervenne believes the tax-free zone would provide a major economic boost for Inkster, leading it to a true Renaissance.

The goal of the Tax Free Renaissance Zone is to focus a complete market-based incentive on a distressed area and rejuvenate the area by creating residential, commercial or industrial growth.

"We need to get government out of the way, and let business do what it does best - provide goods and services for customers," Mervenne said.

"The advantage of a Tax Free Renaissance Zone is that it will include manufacturing, commercial and residential property. It will affect the total community within the zone, including existing businesses," Mervenne said. "There will be no state, local or single-business tax within the zone for 10 years and then the taxes will increase gradually from the 11th to 15th year."

Mervenne said that sales taxes would continue to be collected within the Renaissance Zone "because of the difficulty in monitoring them."

The governor's spokeswoman aid the tax free zone could exist for up to 15 years, which would include a reasonable transition period to phase in the regular state and local tax levels. For example, after the tax- free first 10 years, there would be a 75 percent tax free credit for the 12th year; 50 percent tax free credit for the 13th year and 25 percent tax free credit for the 14th year.

Every county will be allowed to apply for one tax-free zone, which would consist of not more than 10 percent of the total geographic area (or 5,000 acres.) In addition, Detroit and Grand Rapids each would be allowed to apply for one zone. amounting to a total of 85 potential applicants. Each county's zone would have to be approved by the board of commissions as well as other authorities whose taxation would be waived.

A complete criteria has not been developed for the applications, but Mervenne said the following items will be among the key criteria: Level of poverty and unemployment within the zone, education test scores, private sector and community involvement to the plan and municipality's commitment providing essential services.

When quizzed about the reaction of taxing agencies to giving up their levies in the zone, Mervenne said the areas chosen would not likely be places of high tax revenues.

"Even though plans are not finalized for the Tax Free Renaissance Zones, I would advise you to start preparing for application," Mervenne said

Developer Robert Penn noted that multi-million dollar shopping center at Inkster Road and Michigan Avenue is being constructed on property which was empty for 34 years.

"The shopping center is 99 percent leased, and we are looking forward to a golf course. I've never golfed in my home town, but maybe now I can," Penn said. "Inkster is a Renaissance city, and maybe can also be a Renaissance zone."

New program replaces fund

The new Michigan Renaissance Fund, which is planned to be implemented on Oct. 1, replaces the Michigan Strategic Fund, which invested more than $150 million in various projects during the past 10 years.

While some of the projects have yielded positive outcomes, the fund's mission to induce technology transfer is outdated and has not yielded substantial private sector job creation, according to a state spokesman.

Three functions of the Renaissance Fund focus on economic development assistance to communities:

- Land assembly, which would be capitalized and operate as a revolving load fund to help local communities package land for development.
- Land reclamation program which would be a local match to assist communities in developing and repackaging existing sites.
- Infrastructure development could provide grants as well as loans to help finance infrastructure development related to economic development.

Current unobligated funding from the Strategic Fund and future Strategic Fund revenues are slated to fund the Michigan Renaissance Fund.

146-year-old State Fair may move to new venue, state university

By JOAN DYER-ZINNER
MCN Managing Editor

On Tuesday, the Michigan State Fair opened for its 146th season, but its future in Detroit is in doubt.

High-level talks are under way that could move the fair to a permanent site, such as Michigan State University, or to counties that volunteer to host the event.

MSU was suggested as a possible site because of its central location and its agricultural heritage and facilities by State Senator Bill Schuette (R-Midland).

After 21 years of financial loses, Fair Manager John Hertel expects the 1995 fair to come close to breaking even. The State Fair recorded a loss of $2.2 million last year.

Hertel blamed the 1994 loss to long overdue improvements and maintenance to the fairgrounds. He noted that there was an upsurge in attendance last year, and feels optimistic about the future of the fair in its present location.

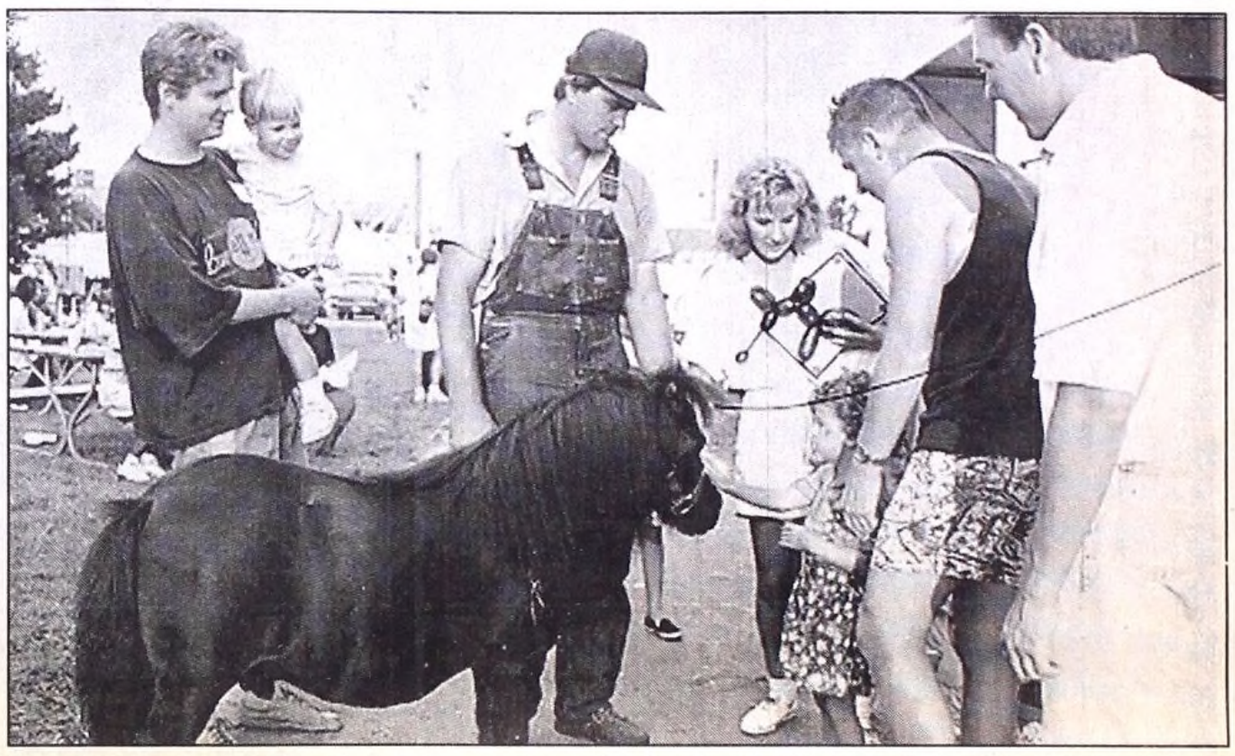

A blue-ribbon panel committee is studying the possible change of venue.

To lure fair-goers this year, the Michigan State Fair has a popular line-up of entertainers, including Joe Diffie, Aug. 24; Brandy, Aug. 25; Wade Hayes, Aug. 26; Guess Who, Aug. 27; Pam Tillis, Aug. 28; Boyz II Men, Aug. 29; Shenandoah, Aug. 30; Patty Loveless, Aug. 31; Neil McCoy, Sept. 2; Chuck Berry and Little Richard, Sept. 3, and Tanya Tucker, Sept. 4.

Other features will be the Ogle Lumberjack Show, Racing Pigs, Demolition Derby, Detroit Mounted Police Precision Riding, Youth Market Livestock Auction, Children's Theater and special days to honor seniors and veterans.

Every day at 3:30 p.m., a parade will wind through the fairgrounds during the 14 day event.

The Michigan State Fair is the nation's first state fair, starting in 1849

Council honors women's right to vote movement

The Wayne city council recently approved a resolution commemorating the 75th anniversary of the rights of citizenship won by women Aug. 26, 1920.

"For the first 150 years in America, Democracy excluded all women, and it took a 72-year persistent campaign involving tens of thousands of women and men to enfranchise one-half of the citizens of the U.S.," states the resolution.

The formal beginning of the suffrage movement began in Seneca Falls, N.Y., with the first Women's Rights Convention attended by more than 300 people.

"Over a period of 72 years, even though thousands of women circulated petitions, gave speeches, published newspapers, pamphlets and magazines, campaigned and were harassed and attacked, many history textbooks give little attention to this lengthy but successful effort," states the resolution.

On Aug. 26, 1920, the 19th Amendment, providing that the right to vote could not be denied to any citizen on account of sex, was ratified as part of the U.S. Constitution.

Much is being said about the rigorous screening process we put our doctors through. But don't worry.

Some survive.

It's a tall order. And maybe not every doctor is cut out for it. But then if we're going to make things easier for our patients, we must strive to provide quality doctors. So, before any doctors become Blue Care Network doctors, before they ever examine a single patient, they must first meet or surpass some rather lofty standards. Here's what it takes. First, all doctors (personal care physicians and specialists) are reviewed against specific written criteria. (Quality of care is the thing we're measuring here.)

Moreover, an on-site inspection is conducted by specially trained staff and the results are reviewed by Blue Care Network doctors in the area. Patient satisfaction surveys are conducted by a professional, independent research company. Here, we ask patients to evaluate their doctor's technical skills as well as the basic level of service and care. Blue Care Network also works with its personal care physicians to ensure that standards are met.

Oh, and one more thing. After meeting all these standards, the doctors who are selected have the pleasure of repeating this process all over again every two years. For as long as they're with us.

Blue Care Network

We screen our doctors so you get better choices.

All Blue Care Network HMOs are independent licensees of the Blue Cross and Blue Shield Association.

City groups thank council, police for park improvements, support

Saying "thanks" takes only a few seconds out of a day, and recently Wayne residents decided to let Mayor Ken Warfield and Wayne police Lt. Dan Randall know how much they are appreciated.

The Taft Neighborhood Park Committee sent a special note to Warfield acknowledging their appreciation for the new park play equipment they recently received.

"This letter is a special note of appreciation to you, Mayor Warfield, Wayne city council members and John Zech, city manager, for the Taft Park playground equipment," said the Taft Committee. "Our dedicated Park Committee carried out the initiatives of the Taft neighborhood citizens, and we are more than a little grateful for the wonderful beginning to the revision of Taft Park.

"However, as we reflect over the busy, sometimes hectic year, we realize that the bright-shiny orange and blue play piece would not be there today without those who supported, assisted and sustained us through the proper procedures."

The Taft Committee said that the playscape project is a vision that they have for the city park property, and the property of the Taft- Galloway Elementary School.

"We appreciate the warmth and trust with which you welcomed our ideas," said the Taft Committee. "We are especially pleased with the way Kim Fallow, director of Wayne parks and recreation, worked with us, brainstorming, suggesting and supporting our goals for the playscape, and keeping our project viable.

"So, for the good beginning, we extend our deepest thanks to you, the council members, and to the city administrators who helped to make climbing, sliding and squealing with glee possible at Taft Park."

> We appreciate the warmth and trust with which you welcomed our ideas. We are especially pleased with the way Kim Fallow, director of Wayne parks and recreation, worked with us, brainstorming, suggesting and supporting our goals for the playscape, and keeping our project viable.

The Taft Neighborhood Park Citizens Committee consists of: Helen Smith-chairperson; Sherri Belanger; Audrey Bennett; Karen Gidley; Michael Hurley; and Marsha Sienko.

The Citizens Against Crime Committee (CACC) sent their thanks to Wayne police Lt. Dan Randall for his constant support with the group.

"Lt. Dan Randall demonstrated a sincere commitment to crime prevention and to The Citizens Against Crime Committee," said the CACC. "His efforts in crime prevention and our group were above and beyond the time permitted by his position in the police department."

CACC officials said that Randall's helpfulness in gathering information for the Crime Committee was "endless".

"The positive attitude exhibited by Lt. Randall was ever so appreciated, especially when dealing in the negative subject matter of crime and prevention," said CACC officials.

Wayne Mayor Ken Warfield

Firefighter honored for a job well done

A Wayne firefighter was applauded by the city council and residents for going above and beyond the call of duty.

Firefighter Scott Knepshield, who is also an emergency medical technician, has been given special recognition by the Harris-Kehrer VFW Post 3323 for his contributions and dedication to the Wayne Fire Department.

"Scott has continuously performed not only his normal duties of emergency medical services and firefighter, but has also distinguished himself with his volunteer work in education to the public about fire safety," said the council.

Knepshield also has participated in the area schools "Learn Not To Burn" program, presenting more than 20 hours of classroom instruction to the youth in the community.

A resolution approved by the council stated the following: "Now, therefore be it resolved, that I, Mayor Kenneth A. Warfield, on behalf of the city council and the citizens of Wayne, do hereby commend firefighter Scott Knepshield for his continued dedication, concern and commitment, not only to the Wayne Fire Department, but also to the community he serves."

London 'beat' proves to be exciting challenge for local writer

By KRISTIN HONECKER
MCN Special Writer

I just experienced the most exciting, interesting and innovating five weeks in my entire 20 years of life.

I spent July through August studying journalism at the University of London on an overseas study program through Michigan State University. I think I want to go back.

Our class was called Reporting in London and our assignments encompassed the whole five weeks we were there. Students were to pick a beat and cover five different angles of that beat, hence one story per week. We were provided with free phone cards to make interviews and typewriters to write up our stories.

Class met early every morning so that we had the afternoons free for sightseeing, experiencing culture, or occasionally, homework. When we met we usually went on field trips. We saw the British Broadcasting Center headquarters, television studios, newspaper offices, and had the chance to hear many professionals speak of their careers. I think the most interesting speaker was a man who was the former press correspondent for the royal family. He had held interviews with Fergie and Andrew and Charles and Diana. We learned rules, regulations, and censorship for the British media. It really made you appreciate the United States and freedom of speech.

I met many new friends and people and we "did" London together. We visited the Tower of London where the crowned jewels are kept. We toured Westminster Abbey and Poet's Corner. We saw St. Paul's Cathedral, the church that Charles and Di were married in. Believe me, if it was there and you could tour it, Michigan State students were first in line.

But being based in London didn't limit our travels at all. One weekend some friends and I jumped on a bus and took an eight hour ride to Scotland, where we visited the famous Edinburgh Castle. Of course we shopped and hit some of the pubs too!

Another weekend we took the plane to Paris. This was an experience in itself; one of the most unique cities in the world, it creates its own atmosphere and ambiance. In France, they speak French. Not English, just French. Believe me, this makes for quite a change.

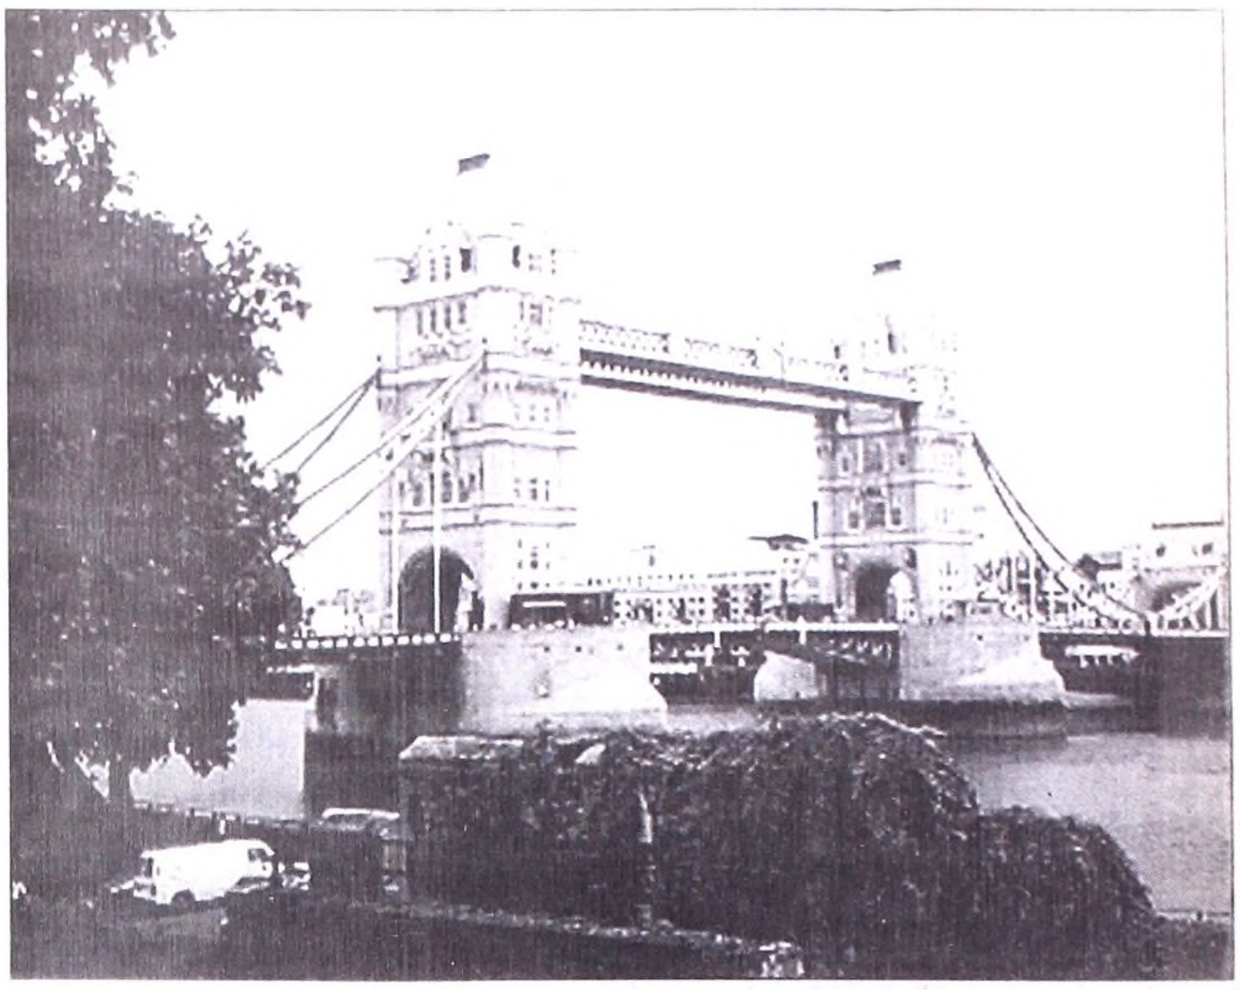

The Eiffel tower at night has to be one of the most beautiful things I've ever seen. We rode to the top and the view was breathtaking. We also saw the Louvre, home to the Mona Lisa. It was framed in a glass case, but tourists were more than welcome to take pictures of the famous masterpiece.

We made it back to England in one piece where we had become so familiar with how to get around London, that the feeling was almost comforting. But as always, all good things must come to an end. I cried when I left the United States to come on this trip, and I cried when I left London to come home. Stepping on American soil brought mixed emotions. It's hard to share my memories of the trip with those who weren't there. Most experiences and adventures really can't be put into words.

It would be neat to say I came back with this renewed sense of who I am or a new zest for life. But let's just say that I simply learned to appreciate things. What was my greatest accomplishment in those five weeks? It could have been the pub crawl...but it was probably a new understanding of different cultures.

In our seminars before we left, we were told that once you partake of an overseas study program, you have developed the travel bug and you want to go everywhere and see everything. Needless to say, they were right. I've already started to plan for next summer.

Editor's note: Kristin Honecker of Canton worked as a staff writer covering Canton during the early part of the summer, and was invited to share her experiences in London with our readers

mer. "We lost an awful lot of money through May that year, about $80,000.

"The end of the year, we turned around and made $20,000, but we had to pay out $32,000 in single business tax. We survived."

What has been Demmer's best year? He said 1994 showed a high profit in sales of cars and trucks.

Loyalty to Ford

Demmer has been good to Ford and vice versa. He said throughout his career, he never wanted to sell any other make or model.

"It's surprising," Demmer said. "Even as a little guy I always wanted to be a Ford dealer. No doubt about it, I have always liked Ford."

Hope for the Future

With Demmer now handing over the lion's share of his dealership operation to his two sons, he said he is very confident that what he has shared with them about the business will not be forgotten.

"I think I've taught them about good business ethics," said Demmer. "They have learned about the strength to do what you have to do to keep the business viable and growing.

Branching Out

Demmer continues to be a major player at his own dealership, however, he has also entered into other challenging business ventures which includes being part owner of Dearborn Bank in Dearborn.

"We're planning on opening our first franchise in Dearborn Heights this September," said Demmer. "The bank has been very successful so far. Everything is on target."

Family Man

As Demmer looks back at his life, he said he wouldn't change a thing. He has enjoyed being around cars and trucks all of his life, has had a fulfilling career as a businessman and loves his wife, Margaret, and six children.

"I'm so happy with my lifestyle as it is," said Demmer. "We have six children who are all married. I have 19 grandchildren. We have lots of good things going on.

"Even though the two boys have taken a big load off of me on the business, I'm here every day, at the bank or in a meeting. I enjoy talking to people and helping those in need whenever I can."

Western Lakes division title is up in the air

Rockets could win it

By TOM MOORADIAN
MCN Staff Writer

Although at least two of the veteran Western Lakes coaches can't agree on who the title favorite is this season, they will concede that, unlike in recent years when one team usually dominated, this year the battle for the 1995 Lakes Division title will be a fierce dogfight.

Farmington Harrison usually is the force to contend with in the Western Division of the conference.

In the meantime, it's either Glenn or Salem which holds the key to the Lakes championship.

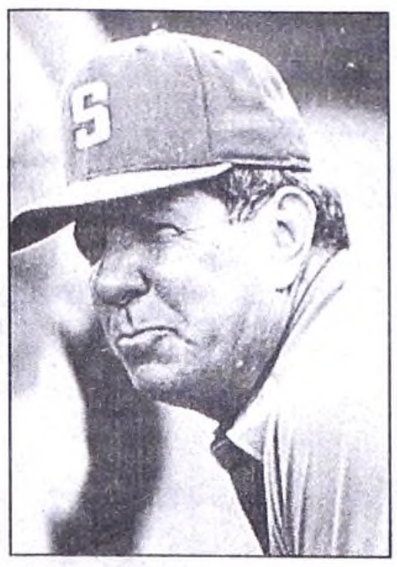

Glenn coach Chuck Gordon and Plymouth-Salem coach Tom Moshimer have faced one another from the opposite sides of the gridiron on more occasions than they are willing to admit, and usually have conflicting assessments about team strengths, but they agree this year "that anyone can win it."

"It's going to be an interesting season because there is so

Rocks are solid, too

By TOM MOORADIAN
MCN Staff Writer

Just because Tom Moshimer has retired from teaching doesn't necessarily follow he's out of coaching.

Although some of his cross-the-field opponents would like it to be that way.

In fact, retirement will enhance his coaching, Moshimer says, because it will give him more time to concentrate on the game.

So, last week, the veteran Plymouth-Salem coach was right back where he has been for the last 29 seasons, getting the Rocks ready for the gruelling 1995 football campaign.

"I love coaching and as long as I love it, I will stick with it," said Moshimer, who is a member of the Michigan Hall of Fame of High School Football Coaches, and is entering his 37th year in coaching.

Despite what many coaches will have you believe, that the ideal coaching condition is to have a coach teaching at the high school where he is coaching because he "can

Vikings have new football coach

By TOM MOORADIAN
MCN Staff Writer

It's his first head coaching position, and Glenn Free is quick to point out that "it will probably be one of my biggest challenges."

But newly-appointed Inkster High football coach, charged with rebuilding a football program that is as thin as filo dough, is ready for that challenge, he says, and is eager to begin the 1995 campaign.

"It's a tough assignment," says Free, who had less than a dozen players show up for the first day of tryouts. "But I feel that we will be alright once we get the kids into camp and start things rolling."

Free's coaching credentials include stints as assistant coach to former Romulus High coaches Dan Henry and Jim Zoltowski.

Free feels confident in the coaching staff he has put together for the 1995 season.

"I'm confident that working together we can turn this program around," he said.

Free replaces former Viking coach Vic Calhoun, whose contract was not renewed by the administration.

A year ago, the Vikings posted a 2-6 overall record and finished fifth in the Suburban Athletic Conference. This year, because of tough academic eligibility rules at the high school, it may be difficult for Free to duplicate even last year's dismal record.

First-year head football coach Glenn Free (third from left) and assistant coach Sam Ellis review the day's practice schedule as their colleagues Alvin Martin (at left) and Michael Shaw look on. Free, a former assistant coach at Romulus High, takes over the Vikings from Vic Calhoun at Inkster High. Inkster finished in the second division of the Suburban Athletic Conference a year ago. The new coach and his staff will have their work cut out for them. Robichaud, the Vikings' natural rival and defending SAC champ, is loaded again this year. Free will make his coaching debut on Sept. 1 against Saginaw Buena Vista, a non-conference opponent. One of the problems the new coach faces is getting enough players to fill the roster. During the first week, only 10 prospects showed up for practice. MCN photo by Carl Brown

The new academic eligibility rule calls for an athlete to carry a "C" or 2.0 average in all subjects. The athlete may not have a failing grade in any subject or he - or she - will be ruled ineligible.

Because of the new rule, approved by the school board last January, Inkster failed to field a men's varsity baseball team for the first time in more than three decades. The women's track team had less than a dozen athletes and most of the spring schedule was shelved.

The Vikings did manage to field a women's softball team.

The rookie coach had only 10 players show up for the first day of varsity practice. In that 10, he has one standout - senior quarterback Vince Lee, a 6-1, 175-pound athlete who has an excellent passing arm.

The 47-year-old Free will be assisted by assistant coaches Mike Shaw, Jerome Orr and Sam Ellis.

Free commended the school's administration for providing him "with all of the help I need to make this a successful season.

"I have to say this that the administration has been very helpful in every way," Free added. "Our initial goal right is organizational - to get as many kids out for the team as possible."

Free and his staff don't have much time. They'll open up the season on Sept. 1 against out-of-conference rival Saginaw Buena Vista.

In the meantime, the SAC is going through a transition of its own. With the defection of Oak Park to a Mega Conference in Oakland County, the SAC is down to six teams: Highland Park (Class A), Willow Run (Class B), Robichaud (Class B), River Rouge (Class B), Inkster (Class C) and Ecorse (Class C).

And Robichaud wants out of the SAC. They have their eyes on the Mega Conference, a conference they have sued to gain entry into.

In the meantime, Robichaud, the defending SAC

Westland captures state title

By TOM MOORADIAN
MCN Staff Writer

A Westland men's softball team continues to ride the crest of success in slow-pitch competition.

After they finished third best at the recent Anderson Invitational Tournament, staged in Wayne, J & K Transportation/Critter Control bounced back in its next tournament to capture the state title.

> "The nationals are always tough. But, if we can get some breaks, you never know. Anything can happen.
> - Larry Quartuccio

Manager Larry Quartuccio's club won the 1995 Michigan United States Slo-Pitch Association Open State Championship last week.

J & K, ranked fourth in the Great Lakes Region and sixth nationally in Class A, sealed the state title with a convincing 10-4 victory over Liberty Park of Sterling Heights.

J & K received an outstanding performance from Tom Ferrell against Liberty, which is ranked fourth nationally in "AA". Ferrell hammered a pair of homers to help establish J & K's superiority over their final opponent in the tournament.

Pitcher Scott Nastally chalked up his third and final victory of the tournament.

In the drive to the championship, J & K erased Jimmies of Kalamazoo from its paths, 20-10, as Scott Janack collected three hits in four appearances at the plate for the winners. Janack stroked a single, double and a triple. Ferrell also chipped in three hits - all two-baggers - to help Nastally post the victory.

J & K got a superb effort throughout the series from Scott Hille, who clubbed four home runs and had 11 runs batted in, while teammate Greg Tome contributed three roundtrippers in a winning cause.

The state title is J & K's ticket to the nationals which will be staged during the Labor Day weekend in Garland, Texas.

"The nationals are always tough," said Quartuccio who continues to manage the team although he and his family have moved out of state. "But, if we can get some breaks, you never know. Anything can happen."

Other local members in J & K's lineup include Westland residents, Chris Scheffer, a former John Glenn baseball and football star; John Sampson and Mike Simonds.

The state tournament was conducted in Sterling Heights.

Sudden-death playoff decides junior golf title

By TOM MOORADIAN
MCN Staff Writer

> "Beevers and Pryblyski displayed a lot of class. Both deserved to win it, but Jamisen broke the deadlock on the first hole of the sudden death.
> - Bob Kosowski

Braving scorching heat and humidity that hit the mid-90s, some 107 junior golfers showed up Friday to compete in the 16th annual Westland Junior Golf Tournament staged at the Westland Municipal Golf Course.

The tournament is co-sponsored by Burger King Restaurants.

And, in the duel for the top prize in the 15-16 flight, after nine holes, Jamisen Beevers and Brian Pryblyski finished with identical 38 scores. To decide who would be the medalist for that flight, the two young golfers were invited to break the deadlock with a sudden death playoff.

Beevers and Pryblyski went back to the course and, after one-hole, Beevers returned with the winning smile.

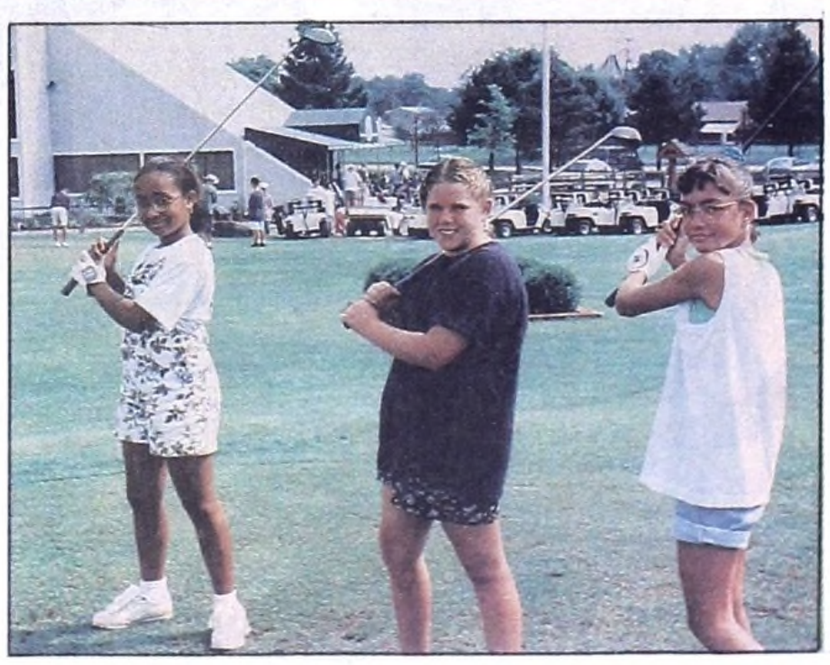

"Beevers and Pryblyski displayed a lot of class," said Bob Kosowski, tournament manager. "Both deserved to win it, but Jamisen broke the deadlock on the first hole of the sudden death."

Over 100 boys and girls took part in the summer classic which is played annually on the Westland Municipal Golf Course (500 S. Merriman Road). The competitors compete in age brackets established by the tournament committee.

In the 11-12 year old flight, Evan Chall walked off the course as the medalist. He fired a 35 to win it. Scott Dunahoo and Ryan Rogowski finished in a two-way tie for second. Each carded 41 over the nine- holes.

In the meantime, in the 13-14 age bracket, Chris Tompkins, won a two- stroke victory over his closest rival, Matthew Dryja. Tompkins finished with a 39 for his round, while Dryja settled for the second- place trophy. He carded a 41.

Braving 90-degree plus heat and humidity, more than 100 boys and girls showed up on Friday to battle for medalist honors at the 16th annual Junior Golf Tournament staged last Friday at the Westland Municipal Golf Course. The tournament, sponsored by Burger King Restaurants, culminated in very close races, including a "sudden death" playoff to determine the 15-16 year-old bracket, according to tourney manager Robert Kosowski. Rivers leads women golfers Firing a 69 at Hudson Mills Golf Course in Garden City, Sandy Rivers surfaced with the low net score last week in the Women's Suburban Golf Association league's first flight.

Sharon Laskowski's 83 stood up as the low gross in the first flight.

In the meantime, Fran Farnin carded a 71 and Sue Beaton turned in a 94 for the low net and gross, respectively, in the second flight.

In third flight competition, leading the charge was Jinny Valentine, who finished with a 66 for low net honors. June Wright had a 103 for the best of the low gross golfers.

Junior golfers from the area challenged the Westland Municipal Golf Course on Friday at the 1995 city of Westland - Burger King Restaurants' annual junior golf tournament. much balance this year in our division," said Westland John Glenn coach Chuck Gordon, who is beginning his 19th year as head coach and his 24th at Glenn. "There isn't one that stands above the rest."

Moshimer agrees, but he believes "that Glenn is the odds-on-favorite."

Gordon sees the title matchup more spread out with Plymouth-Salem, Livonia Stevenson and North Farmington among the more serious contenders."

Glenn, which started the 1994 campaign with an atypical two straight losses, managed to come back and post an 8-3 season, including a victory over the then state's No. 1 ranked Class AA team, Belleville, in the post season playoffs.

Among the 55-varsity hopefuls who showed up for practice last week, Gordon found several blue-chip players. Two-way tackle Jeff Cook, an All-Area candidate a year ago, along with linebackers Mike Sosnowski and Matt Grolio, and end Keith King should form the core of a pretty solid defense.

But where will Gordon find someone to replace All-State running back tailback Brent Washington? That is a question he can't answer at the moment.

Incidentally, Washington is with the Wolverines at the University of Michigan hoping to help another former Glenn coach, Lloyd Carr, become a winner.

Carr coached at Glenn from 1973 through 1975 before he joined the coaching staff at the University of Michigan. He was named the Wolverines' head coach earlier this year after the former coach Gary Moeller was fired for an altercation with Southfield police at a restaurant in the city of Southfield.

Gordon also must find a replacement for quarterback Jamie Hagelthorn, who has graduated. Hagelthorn came on strong after the first two games and guided the Rockets to the playoffs.

"We are looking at two candidates right now who have the potential to fill the void created by Jamie's departure," said Gordon.

Gordon said that the two candidates - senior Ian Wade and sophomore Justin Berant have the ability but lack experience.

The Westlanders will face Howell for their opening test on Sept. 1. The Rockets will host their non-conference in a game that begins at 7:30 p.m.

champ, may again have the horses for another run at the title.

Veteran coach Bob Yauck says he is a contender, but he is quick to note that Highland Park and Willow Run will also be tough. Yauck's opponents say the Bulldogs are overwhelming favorites to repeat.

Yauck will begin his 26th season as head coach at Robichaud on Sept. 1.

Golf

Nicole Nolan picked up a first-place in the 11-12 year old girls' division, beating out Faith Fletcher for the top honors. Also, in the 13-14-year-old age group, the winner was Jaida Clarridge. The silver medal went to Colleen Yorick.

Elizabeth Handzlik was declared the winner in the 15-16 flight for girls.

Tournament organizers said they were elated at the number of golfers who turned out for the meet.

"We had one of those 90-plus degree days as we have been having along here lately, but that didn't keep the competitors away. They came to play. The turnout was just excellent," stressed Kosowski. "I know the kids and their parents enjoyed the tournament, and I want to thank Burger King for sponsoring this event each year.

"I overheard a lot of the kids say that they look forward to coming back next year."

keep an eye on his players."

Moshimer doesn't see his retirement as a handicap, but a plus to managing his team.

"I have more time now to look at plays, view film and do everything I need to get ready for the season," Moshimer said. "When you're teaching, you also have to get ready for the school year."

Moshimer is quick to point out that the preparation and players are the key to any season.

"And this team is unquestionably the best I have seen when it comes to attitude and work ethics."

Though Salem is considered by many in the Western Lakes Conference as one of the frontrunners in the Western Lakes, Lakes Division title race, Moshimer believes that there is no one team that will dominate. But he is willing to go on the record to single out Westland John Glenn as "the odds-on-favorite" to win the divisional title.

Moshimer and his Rocks have drawn a tough assignment for their opener. They will host Belleville on Sept. 1, and coach Bob LaPointe's Tigers have a score of players returning from last year's Mega Conference, Red Division championship team.

A 5-4 team a year ago, Salem has a cadre of some 15 returning letterwinners who could make this an interesting, if not a title season. There is a lot of good and healthy competition going on for starting assignments, Moshimer pointed out.

Nate Gray and Derek Schmiedel are the top candidates for the quarterback job, while Kevin Grim and Matt Johnson continue to work out at fullback. At the wingback slots are James Chapman and Adam Dailide. Look for either Frank Lewicki or Kirk Craggs at tight end.

Tom Bish, Derek Ellison and Craig Morska are the leading candidates for the starting tackle slots on offense and Tim Kocolski, Brian Charlesforth and Mike Middel want the starting assignment at guard.

Either Kevin Guse or Moskra will start at center.

Fitzgerald, Demmer place 2nd in Grand Tour for Children's rally

Everyone was a winner at the 10th Annual Michigan Association of Children's Alliances (MACA) Grand Tour for Children.

Gerald D. Fitzgerald, president and chief executive officer of the Oakwood Healthcare System, and Jim Demmer, vice president of Jack Demmer Ford and member of the Oakwood Hospital Annapolis Center Foundation Board, finished in second place of the Equipped Class in the Grand Tour.

There were 19 entries in the three-day competition this year. Each car was entered into one of three classes: Equipped, Unequipped or Seat of Pants.

Prizes were awarded to the top two finishers in each class.

Fitzgerald said he enjoys combining his favorite pastime, rally competitions, with his life-long commitment to children.

> "This is an opportunity for me to help young people and their families address support services together and work toward a better life."

> - Gerald D. Fitzgerald

"This is an opportunity for me to help young people and their families address support services together and work toward a better life," said Fitzgerald.

Fitzgerald, the driver and five-time veteran, and Demmer, a four-time veteran, co-driver, and navigator, received plaques and a $200 check.

Their car also won the "Concours de Elegance" award for having the best looking entry in the competition.

They competed in a limited edition 1995 Ford Mustang Cobra R equipped with a time/speed/distance rally computer.

The $200 award won by the Fitzgerald/Demmer team will be donated to Youth Living Centers, a MACA member. Youth Living Centers is a private, non-profit human service agency serving abused, neglected and homeless children and families in southeastern Michigan.

This event is one of the most unique charity fund raisers in the mid- west. The competitive motorsport takes place annually to increase visibility for the needs of children in Michigan and to gather funds for MACA.

The state-wide association is comprised of 160 public and private sector individuals and agencies dedicated to improving and protecting the quality of life for children and their families.

MACA's mission is to benefit all children with an emphasis on abused, neglected and delinquent youth.

Road rally participants spent three days as ambassadors for Michigan's children while traversing some of lower Michigan's most scenic roads.

The 800-mile event followed a moderately challenging road rally format and began and ended each day in Lansing.

The route passed through Flint, Ann Arbor, Whitemore Lake, western Detroit, Marshall and other communities.

Throughout the weekend, participants stopped at approximately 12 children's agencies. The children participated in the rally by providing the rallyists with lunch, washing their cars and various other activities to help the ral-

2 area women to join Mackinac Bridge walk

Labor Day weekend walking plans are set for two area residents.

Sharron LaCasse of Garden City and Ann Seykell of Livonia are Wayne County Park System's Walk Michigan grand prize winners. They won trips for two to Mackinac Island and will be participating in the annual Labor Day Bridge Walk.

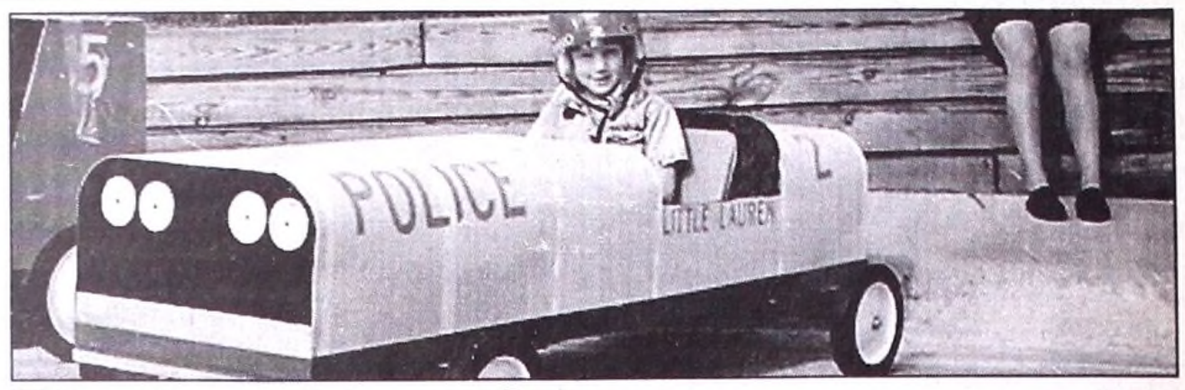

Walk Michigan is a year round fitness program organized to promote good health and to highlight the many recreational facilities in Michigan.

Sponsored by Michigan Recreational Park Association, Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan and Blue Care Network, Walk Michigan is a program for all ages. Walkers have the opportunity to participate in walks sponsored by their local recreation departments. Each time they participate in a Walk Michigan event, they have a chance to win a trip for two to Mackinac Island and the Labor Day Bridge Walk.

From August 1994 to July 1995, 753 Wayne County Parks walkers logged over 1,500 miles in 50 Walk Michigan events.

Wayne County Parks announced its 1995-1996 Walk Michigan program:

6:30 Aug. 29, Northville; 6 p.m. Sept. 12, Newburgh Pointe; 9 a.m. Sept. 16, Nankin Mills; 6 p.m. Sept. 20, Warrendale; and 6 p.m. Sept. 26, Wilcox.

Litter remains forever?

At a recent meeting of the Huron Valley Conservation Association (HVCA), Billy Manning of Romulus questioned fellow members about the time it takes for common items of roadway litter to decompose to a non-recognizable form.

His first question involved the decomposing time for styrofoam, and HHCA members correctly responded, "never."

Manning noted that it takes 80 to 100 years for aluminum to decompose to a non-recognizable form, and 50 to 80 years for plastic containers to decompose.

Other common roadway litter and their period for decomposition were listed by Manning:

> The careless act of littering has long-term results, which gives us a further reason not to litter.
> - Billy Manning

- Plastic bags, 10 to 20 years
- Plastic coated cartons, five years
- Cigarette butts, 10 to 12 years
- Leather shoes, 25 to 40 years
- Wool socks, six to 24 months
- Paper containers, two to five months
- Orange peels, up to six months

"The careless act of littering has long-term results," Manning said, "which gives us a further reason not to litter."

The HVCA promotes conservation education programs, which include anti- littering projects.

Rally

lyists get back on the road quickly.

In addition, the breaks gave rallyists the opportunity to get to know the children they were helping.

A road rally can best be described as a fascinating, demanding, competitive motorsport which tests a team's ability to coordinate navigational skill and precision timing.

Rallists maintain prescribed speeds are at or below posted speed limits and are to comply with all traffic laws.

Competitors must find their way over a previously unseen route at a prescribed average speed by using route instruction given at the start of the event.

Timing controls are set up along the way to check the exactness of the team's efforts. Penalties are assessed for early or late arrival.

This event is sanctioned by the Sports Car Club of America.

The MACA is a statewide information and action network focusing on the needs of children and their families. MACA believes that all children and their families have the right to opportunities and services which encourage their physical, social, emotional and intellectual development.

Space theater continues

By RACHAEL LEWIS
MCN Staff Writer

Destiny In Space, a space film of astronomical proportion is featured daily in the Detroit Science Center's Omnimax Theater.

It took 43 astronauts, six missions and five years to produce this larger-than-life-size film.

Destiny In Space is an inspiring look at the challenges future generations will face about the universe.

Film-goers can travel along with NASA astronauts as they repair various satellites and lend some insight into the daily activities in Earth's orbit. Of particular interest in this film is the computer simulation of planetary transformation from barren, lifeless, surfaces with unbreathable atmospheres, to lush green space with cities flourishing at water's edge.

The terrain hugging fly over of Mars and Venus is equally spectacular. The rapid traversing of peaks and valleys is one of the true highlights of Omnimax technology.

"The Road to Space," a model and photo exhibition on loan from the International Plastic Modelers Society, Livonia Chapter, is on display through December. The exhibit, hand crafted by local artisans and model building enthusiasts, features models of spacecraft ranging from early satellites to a Saturn V and the current space shuttle. The display also features 79 photos highlighting the history of space flight.

Laser Adventures, an exclusive educational laser presentation, features "On the Shore of the Cosmic Ocean." The presentation includes dramatic three dimensional graphics floating above the entrance to the exhibit hall. The program is presented daily.

Growing in the Science Center's hydroponics garden are earth tomatoes and space tomatoes. The tomatoes are grown without, soil, the same way vegetables will be grown on the space stations. The space tomatoes are grown from seeds which were in orbit aboard the LDEF (Long Duration Exposure Facility) satellite which orbited over 250 miles above the earth for over five years. The LDEF satellite and hydroponic garden are also featured in the Omnimax film Destiny in Space.

The sun comes out every Saturday in September when the brightest star in our galaxy can be viewed through a 14-inch Celestron telescope mou ted on the Science Center's outdoor plaza. Learn about solar flares, eclipses, sun spots, and global warming from local astronomer Karl Stumpf.

Visitors also may pilot their own "shuttle" on the Detroit Science Center's own air shuttle, and experience how the shuttle maneuvers in a frictionless environment. In addition, visitors can also spend the night with science at an overnight Camp-In on the Science Center's exhibit hall. A fun-filled evening for scouts or community groups begins with hands-on activities on the exhibit hall, continues with demonstrations and the Omnimax film, and ends with a midnight snack. Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts can earn up to two badges by attending the Camp-In.

Organized groups can schedule a sleep over by calling (313) 577-8400 ext. 417.

Firebird convertible, a blast to drive

1995 Pontiac Firebird Formula Convertible

By JUSTIN WILCOX
MCN Automotive Writer

It is a rough job, but someone has to do it. Yes, testing the 1995 Firebird convertible is a rough job. The wind messes up your hair, the sun burns your face and the occasional bug flies in your ear.

Sign me up for this punishment for the rest of my life. To say that the Firebird is a blast to drive would be an insult to the word "blast's" connotation.

The top lowers in a matter of seconds, letting the sun shine in and brighten your life. In my case, the rain swept in, the clouds thundered overhead and the lightning crashed. You would think that this would hamper my opinion of the car, yet I just turned the radio up a little louder and pushed the pedal a little further down. Are we having fun yet? Hell YES!!!

For $24,674, you receive a drop dead gorgeous body style, remote keyless entry, and AM/FM stereo radio with a compact disc player and 6 speaker sound, a 4-speed automatic transmission, a 3.8 Liter V-6 engine, 16" aluminum 5 spoke wheels, air conditioning and traction control.

"Firebird is styled to be noticed, equipped for outstanding performance and handling and priced to be accessible. A lot of people are taking notice, because at the end of the third quarter of the 1994 model year, Firebird sales were up 236 percent over the previous year," said Pontiac General Manager John G. Middlebrook. "We look for the exciting lineup of 1995 Firebirds to continue this trend."

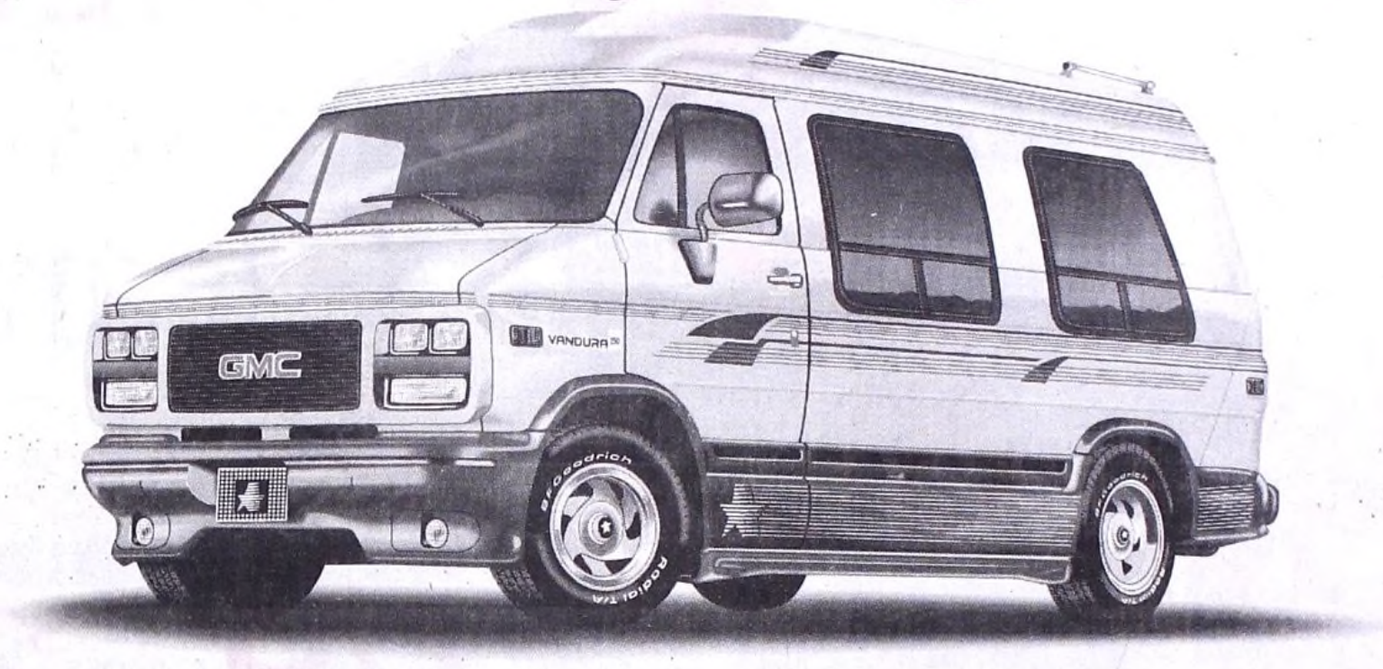

I know what you're thinking, a V6, what about the good ole American muscle of the V8? I thought I would miss it too, but to my surprise this new engine offering from General Motors proves its worth the moment you push on the pedal. This engine had the snarl of a V8, the muscle of a V8, yet returned a mileage rating of 19 mpg in the city and 28 mpg on the highway. When you consider the cost of gas and insurance premiums these days, General Motors has developed an offering for those that either need to watch their checkbooks or just do not want to throw money away uselessly.

The Pontiac Firebird convertible allows the driver to enjoy a muscle car without being penalized at the same time. The built quality of this car was light years ahead of the cars which shared its name just a few short years ago. Body flex was nearly nonexistent with the top down, and wind buffeting was calm for the front seat passengers and a bit stormy for those who dared to sit in the back.

If I had to find something to complain about, I would have to say that the windshield is steeply raked backwards, making short drivers hit their head when getting in and out.

No one has to bang on my head to tell me that the Firebird is one of the best values in the sports/muscle car class.

Car show

Custom, hot rod exhibition slated at Van Buren Park

By LORI GILLESPIE
MCN Staff Writer

The people who participate in car shows are a very dedicated bunch, working on their cars and trucks to get them perfect.

The reward comes from having people admire their autos on the street, and especially, in car shows.

Luckily for these people, the Rod & Custom Car Show at Van Buren Park is just around the corner.

Jim Wilson, Bob Brown and George Speaks are just three of the many people who will participate in the upcoming car show.

Wilson, from Ypsilanti, owns a 1932 Chevy three-window coupe. He has owned the car for 17 years.

He customized the car, making it a hot rod, as soon as he got it.

"It took about a year and a half," Wilson said. "I chopped about four inches off of the top, put a Chevy 355 motor in it, Corvette seats, and a 411 rear end on it."

Van Buren Township resident Bob Brown went the same route as he customized a '34 Ford.

"I put a late model 302 Ford engine in it," he explained. "I also added an automatic transmission and cruise control. I changed the brakes from mechanical to hydraulic and took the fenders and running boards off. I've owned the car for 18 years, and I'm still working on it."

Brown's Ford has taken some awards in the unfinished class, but he said, "it's hard to compete with cars that are finished."

Wilson said his car won awards when it was first customized, but, "it's getting pretty ragged now."

Speaks, of Van Buren, will be showing his '51 Mercury Radical Custom at the upcoming car show.

According to Speaks, a radical custom car means, "the car has more than two major changes done to it. This makes it very difficult to make out what it is."

The '51 Mercury has a chopped top, with fenders from a '63 Riviera, which have been grafted and molded into the Ford. Speaks also took parking lights from a '63 Riviera, turned them around, and uses them for lights on the front of his car.

There are many different reasons people get involved customizing or restoring their cars, the three car buffs said.

For Speaks, who drives the car on a regular basis, an interest in cars stems from, "my childhood background, looking out the window at school. Seeing other people's fine rides, and wishing I had one. I found out that you have to take what you have, and make it what you want. People who customize their cars do it to be a little different, set themselves apart from the crowd."

Wilson said he became interested in customizing cars when his brother owned a customized car.

For Brown however, it was a different reason.

"My dad use to race cars down at Flat Rock Speedway. He was also a mechanic so I was around cars a lot when I was a kid. As I got older, I became interested in the older cars," Brown said. "I worked on them as a hit and miss process, learning from my mistakes. I looked at different magazines and at what other people had done, incorporating their ideas into my own car."

Brown also owns a '55 Ford F100 Pick-up truck which he has used as a learning instrument, doing body work on it to learn how to do it on his '34 Ford.

They said they don't drive their cars on a regular basis, using them strictly as show cars.

"I just take it to shows and club events, I can't drive it every day. I have driven it to Columbus, Ohio and St. Paul, Minnesota, so it does have a lot of miles on it," Wilson said.

Wilson is busy right now customizing a '55 Ford pick-up. Aside from working on his '34 Ford, Brown is also working on restoring a mid-'60s dragster. He also restores and customizes old peddle cars. He has even customized a few cars so that they are motorized. Some of his non-motorized cars took first place at Autorama last year. Speaks has also done other custom jobs. He owns a '39 Ford Convertible (full custom), and a '37 Cadillac LaSalle which has been molded to be sleek and is low to the ground.

Buick XP2000, car for the future

Buick's XP2000, a concept car introduced for the 1995 auto show season, is an elegant mid-size sedan showcasing advanced technology to enhance the convenience, comfort and safety of its passengers.

A vision of the cars Buick will offer as it enters the 21st Century – and its own second century of providing premium American motorcars – XP2000 is built around a revolutionary new generation of interactive electronics.

"XP2000 is more than a dream car – we see it as a realistic preview of Buicks of the future," said Buick General Manager Edward H. Mertz.

YWCA to host 'Week Without Violence' campaign

By LORI GILLESPIE
MCN Staff Writer

Violence is a hot topic in today's society - taking place on television, in the movies, in music, and on the streets.

The YWCA is trying to do something to eliminate this sickness from our society. From Oct. 15-21, the national organization of the YWCA is hosting a "Week Without Violence."

For this week, the YWCA of Western Wayne County is asking local individuals, government agencies, media, schools, business and community groups to join them in a nationwide campaign. The YWCA is challenging every American to live for one week without perpetrating, participating in or observing violence.

"We want to get as many groups involved with this campaign as possible. We think this will cause a ripple effect, getting even more individuals and groups involved," according to Corinne Vincent of the Western Wayne County YWCA.

The community has many different ways to become involved with this event.

"They can start by having

Corinne Vincent

the parents talk to the children at home about violence," Vincent stated. "If people would get more involved with their neighborhoods, violence would disappear. They could start a neighborhood watch program. Just having neighbors talk to each other would help bring society closer together. People would begin to look out for each other if they knew each other."

The national campaign was developed after an article about the YWCA appeared in Parade. The article mentioned that the YWCA was considering this idea.

"After this article came out, the YWCA received thousands of letters about it. Our public relations department took over and developed the idea," Vincent said.

The YWCA is trying to involve everyone with this campaign. "Nationally, they sent information out to different ethnic groups. It had the YWCA logo on it, but the information was written in different languages," according to Vincent.

There are different issues to be dealt with each day of the campaign.

On Oct. 15, the theme is "A Day of Remembrance." The YWCA is asking that we remember people who have been killed through violence.

"So many people have lost their lives in a violent way, nationally and locally, from presidents who have been assassinated to kids killed in gang wars. We would just like everyone to remember them," Vincent said.

"Protecting Our Children" is the issue to be dealt with on the 16th.

"The Westland/Inkster YWCA teaches classes on good parenting. With this, we are trying to prevent child abuse," Vincent replied.

Children are the Oct. 17 topic, with the emphasis on "Making Our Schools Safe. There will be an emphasis on different clubs for kids, and kids in crisis.

"We will show the kids how to oppose gangs and drugs by showing them all the bad caused by them," according to Vincent.

On Oct. 18, women's issues are the topic. "Confronting Violence Against Women" is the title for this event. There will be a focus on issues concerning women. The YWCA is all about helping girls and women reach their full potential.

"We want to give men options for turning energies into non-violent behavior," Vincent said. "We have karate groups which teach young men how to use their minds and bodies in the same way. We want them to think before striking, this is the mastery of self-control." This is the idea behind the fifth event. "Facing Violence Against Men," Vincent stated. "Men should know that there are other ways of presenting their masculinity besides how hard they can hit or carrying some type of a weapon."

One of the major reasons there is violence in the world today is racism.

"Eliminating Racism and Hate Crimes" is the issue being tackled on the 20th. "People must make a conscious effort to eliminate stereotypes," Vincent said. "The Ku Klux Klan seems to be experiencing a revival of sorts. And there are a lot of Nazi skinheads in the area. People need to be reminded of what happened in World War II with the holocaust. We need to have a positive approach to living with people who are different from us."

On the last day of the event, the YWCA is giving an alternative to violence for everyone.

Preparations launched for 1996 auto show

Official dates for the 1996 North American International Auto Show have been scheduled by the Detroit Auto Dealers Association.

The schedule for the 1996 North American International Auto Show, Detroit's eighth such international show, was announced by show co- chairmen James Tellier and George Gorno.

More than 3,000 new vehicles have been introduced in the show's first seven years. A total of 35 manufacturer press conferences are expected during the three full days of press conferences and unveilings. A total of 4,408 media representing 45 countries attended the 1995 NAIAS, and an equal number or more are expected for the 1996 event..

Preview attendance has been capped at 10,000 during Supplier Preview Days.

From 6 to 9 p.m. Jan. 5, 1996, a Charity Preview is slated. The 1995 NAIAS black tie Charity Preview drew over 13,500 guests and raised in excess of $1.6 million for 10 local children's charities last year.

The public showing will open on Saturday morning, Jan. 6, and continue through the Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. holiday on Jan. 15. Attendance during the public days of the 1995 NAIAS reached a record of 693,569, including a single day record 135,210 on Saturday of closing weekend.

"Staying open for the Dr. Martin Luther King holiday on Monday provides one more opportunity to see what promises to be another outstanding show", said NAIAS executive director Rod Alberts.

Detroit's NAIAS is considered on of the five major international auto shows with Geneva, Paris, Frankfurt and Tokyo.

Car benefit

Terry Donovan (left) showed off a 1966 Chevy truck at the recent Autoline-American Most Wanted Car Swap benefit for the blind children. Len Barton (right) displayed a 1941 Cadillac. The Autoline and American Most Wanted benefit for the Penrickton Center for the Blind Children in Wayne was a huge success with more than 300 people participating in the event. Participants from throughout the state showed off their best vehicles. When the auto extravaganza ended, benefit organizers were still counting funds gathered, however, the last count was more than $2,000. MCN photo by Carl Brown

Concept

"The exterior is a new example of the kind of exciting yet practical design that helps make today's Buicks -- for example the 1995 Riviera -- such a success with our customers," Mertz said. "And the advanced technology inside is designed to make daily driving easier and more enjoyable."

Michael J. O'Malley, Buick's general marketing manager, said Buick believes that what will increasingly set tomorrow's cars apart will be the way they enhance the lives of their owners.

"XP2000 is a dramatic way for us to explain how Buick plans to make every trip -- from a rush-hour commute to a long vacation with the kids -- as enjoyable and productive as possible," he said. "It reflects how Buick sees comfort and convenience evolving over the next several years. And it reflects traditional Buick characteristics -- substantial, distinctive, powerful and mature."

O'Malley said that "customers, especially those with families, are asking more and more for increased comfort, increased convenience and increased efficiencies in their products, services and their lives in general."

The heart of XP2000 is a network of advanced computers that tailors the car to the needs and desires of the individual driver and allows it to use the Intelligent Vehicle Highway Systems planned for the next century.

These computers also link XP2000 to the rapidly growing "information superhighway," making it easier for the driver to work and relax while in the car.

Among specific features:

-- A remote keyless fob that can position the car's seats, climate controls and even driving response to a specific driver's tastes.

-- A "Smart Card" setup in which a credit card may be inserted into the instrument panel, allowing the driver to automatically charge tolls, fuel, food and other services.

-- An advanced "head-up" display, and an instrument-panel display that can be adapted for use with a personal computer.

-- A navigation system that guides the driver along a map display.

-- An array of safety features, ranging from eight air bags to a detection system for obstacles near the path of the car.

The foundation for all of these features is a rear-wheel-drive vehicle with outstanding space efficiency.

Buick Chief Engineer Anthony H. Derhake said XP2000 achieves a major challenge to create a contemporary five-passenger mid-size sedan with an unusual amount of interior space as well as strong styling appeal.

"We wanted a car that would have great cabin and trunk space, as well as enough space under the hood to handle one of today's V-8 engines," Derhake said.

Michael E. Doble, Buick's manager of advanced concepts, pointed out that XP2000 is about the length of a mid-size Buick Regal, but with the interior space of Buick's flagship sedan, the Park Avenue. He described the exterior color as a pearlescent silver-gold.

Because XP2000 was planned to emphasize interior convenience, comfort and safety features and exterior architecture, no special engine was developed. A 5-liter V-8 is installed, which demonstrates the versatility of the architecture. However, Doble said the "conceptual" engine would be a V-8 of about 3.5 liters -- or, alternatively, a further advancement of the acclaimed 3800 V-6.

The front-mounted engine is combined with an advanced electronically controlled five-speed automatic transmission.

SPECIFIC FEATURES

Cindy McColley, Buick's manager of shows and exhibits, said the best way to understand the new concept car is to "take a look at XP2000 in our auto show display and imagine what it could do for you as a driver or passenger."

This new world unfolds as the driver approaches XP2000. In place of today's metal key is a tiny transmitter, much like today's remote keyless entry. Programmed for each individual driver, this keyless fob can, at the push of a button, unlock the vehicle and immediately adjust the seats, steering column, mirrors, climate control and entertainment system to settings chosen by that person.

Called Customer's Choice, this feature can even adjust the way the car drives, by tailoring the steering effort, suspension feel, engine response and transmission shift pattern to the tastes of the individual driver.

A security code in the keyless fob is recognized by the car's computers. When the fob is inserted into a slot in the instrument panel, and then gently pushed, the car will start.

Customers can also tailor XP2000 to their individual needs by inserting a GM "Smart Card" into another slot in the instrument panel. The Smart Card, essentially a flat plastic encapsulated memory chip, is both a credit card and a personal information card.

The Smart Card stores each driver's Customer's Choice settings, allowing them to be transferred to any Buick with this feature. It also allows the driver to automatically charge tolls, fuel, food and other services. The Smart Card even stores a wealth of personal information, from phone numbers to emergency medical data.

Once under way, the XP2000 provides the driver with a broad range of options.
